Madison kept busy

MADISON — Firefighters in Madison had a busy weekend. On Saturday they rescued a man trapped in his car after crashing into a utility pole, and on Sunday they put out a blaze that destroyed a condemned house.

David Griggs, 39, of Venice crashed into an Illinois Power Co. pole in the 500 block of State St. at about 6:20 p.m. Griggs, of the 1000 block of College Street, was seriously injured in the single-car crash and treated in the emergency room at St. Elizabeth Medical Center. He was transferred to Barnes Hospital in St. Louis, where he remained in serious condition Monday with multiple bone fractures.

A fire company rescue squad labored about 35 minutes to extricate Griggs.

The crash knocked down a high voltage line, and police cordoned off the block to prevent a large crowd from being endangered by the live wire.

A police report gave no indication of what caused the crash. Griggs was not intoxicated.

The crash knocked out electricity to about 600 customers in downtown Madison, said IP spokesman Ralph Simmons. It also burned out many television sets and microwave ovens, said Mayor John Bellcote.

On Sunday, fire destroyed a vacant residence at 1331 Madison Ave. The fire consumed the house by 8:30 p.m., despite the efforts of the Madison Fire Company. No one was hurt.

What remained of the house, which had been condemned and scheduled for demolition before the blaze, was torn down Monday by the Street Department.

Abortion issue attracts GC residents to Capitol

By Jason Moody

WASHINGTON — The Hope Clinic in Granite City sponsored about 30 Madison County residents in the mix of political activists, celebrities and feminists that descended Sunday upon Capitol Hill to rally for a woman's right to have abortions.

"We hope to send the message that safe, legal abortions are vital to so many young women's lives," said Julie Adams, a counselor at Hope Clinic, an outpatient surgical center that performs abortions. "No matter what the Supreme Court decides, the need for abortions will not go away."

The Hope Clinic group left by plane Saturday and most returned home Sunday. However, Adams said many planned to stay in Washington during the week to lobby Congress.

Madison County also was represented by those going to Washington against abortions.

Despite brisk winds, police estimated 300,000 marchers participated in what organizers are heralding as the largest protest of its kind.

The National Organization of Women, the group organizing the event, said closer to 600,000 people were in attendance.

The protest was staged in part to send a message to the U.S. Supreme Court as it prepares to hear arguments in a Missouri case that could grant states more power to restrict abortions.

A Missouri law declares that life begins at conception and mandates that no public funds, employees or personnel can be used to perform an abortion or advise that an abortion be performed.

This law was challenged by pro-choice activists and was found unconstitutional by a St. Louis appeals court in July 1988.

U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Bellefonte, has signed an advisory legal brief urging the court to use the Missouri case to reverse Roe v. Wade, the landmark 1973 ruling that overturned anti-abortion laws in 33 states including Illinois.

The Supreme Court has scheduled its hearing on the case, known as William L. Webster, v. Reproductive Health Services, for April 26.

The Madison County residents whose trips were financed by the clinic were "mostly friends, relatives and supporters of the clinic," she said.

The Madison County residents whose trips were financed by the clinic were "mostly friends, relatives and supporters of the clinic," she said.

The marchers — many dressed in white garb in remembrance of the suffragettes who fought to win women the right to vote — carried placards that said everything from "Mormons for choice" to "Mind your own uterus."

Despite continued verbal battles, there were no arrests or reports of physical violence.

Federal lawmakers, the Rev. Jesse Jackson and other political activists were joined by a contingent of celebrities that included Cybill Sheppard, Morgan Fairchild, Whoopi Goldberg, Jane Fonda, Mario Thomas, Gloria Steinem and Bella Abzug.

Policeman sues again

GRANITE CITY — A policeman, who has a libel suit against the Bellefonte News Democrat and David Partney, has filed a second, related lawsuit.

Police Sgt. Tim Lyerla filed suit in Madison County Circuit Court on April 7 against Partney, a former school board member, charging Partney put him in a false light following Lyerla's 1987 arrest of Partney for driving under the influence of alcohol.

Partney was convicted on the charge in a jury trial, but the case is under appeal.

The suit charges that Partney, by making allegedly false and malicious statements about Lyerla, placed Lyerla in a false light before the public and caused him great mental anguish, embarrassment, humiliation, emotional distress and damage to his reputation.

Partney said he has not yet seen the suit and couldn't comment.

Sex assault alleged in local case

GRANITE CITY — Michael Edward Steinborn, 43, appeared in Granite City court Monday afternoon on charges of aggravated criminal sexual assault, a Class X felony, and aggravated criminal sexual abuse, a Class 2 felony.

The two-count felony information issued through the Madison County State's Attorney's Office alleged Steinborn sexually assaulted a 20-month-old Granite City girl.

Bond was set at $30,000 and Steinborn was transferred Monday evening to the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville.

Steinborn's address was given as the Granite City Lodge in the 1200 block of 19th Street.

The assault allegedly occurred Saturday evening in an apartment on State Street. Steinborn reportedly was baby-sitting the victim and a 3-month-old infant.

The parents of the children were taken into custody that night, but were released without being charged at 1:10 p.m. Monday, pending further investigation.

The children are in Department of Children and Family Services custody and we will seek to maintain them there for the time being," State's Attorney Bill Haine said Monday afternoon.

Library Week celebrated April 9-15

This year National Library Week is being celebrated April 9-15. The theme, "Ask a Professional, Ask Your Librarian," focuses on the advantage of knowledgeable, professional help in locating necessary information.

Granite City Public Library Director Robert J. Stack said, "We want businesses and organizations to know they have a reliable source of information, someone they can consult without paying a fee. And adults, students and families with young children in our community receive the same professional expertise."

"When people have questions," Stack said, "we want the librarian to be the first person they think of."

The Granite City Public Library each day during Library Week will select a recipient of a free poster. Selections will be held in the adult and children's departments of the main library, 2001 Delmar Ave., and at the branch, 2145 Johnson Road. Each adult winner will receive a large "Read" poster featuring a celebrity in the field of entertainment. A child whose name is chosen will be given a poster showing a storybook character.

Airport expansion vote an overwhelming 'no'

By Madeleine Smith
Staff affiliate

BELLEVILLE — Residents of three St. Clair County townships sent out a clear message about their feelings on the proposed joint civil/military use of Scott Air Force Base in a non-binding referendum April 4.

With all the township votes counted, 3,421 residents said "no" and 1,909 said "yes" to the idea.

In the individual townships, the votes were:

• Mascoutah—314 yes, 533 no

• O'Fallon—1,288 yes, 2,373 no

• Shiloh Valley—307 yes, 515 no

The three townships directly surround the areas where the proposed expansion would take place.

Noise pollution, environmental damage, the loss of prime farmland, the displacement of families, the potential for higher taxes and the decline of their small-town rural atmospheres are just some of the reasons opponents have given for fighting the project.

Supporters of the project say the Metro East needs the economic benefits the expansion would bring. The runway and terminal would mean airport capacity that would relieve the pressure at St. Louis' Lambert International Air port, while bringing businesses and jobs to this area, they say.

'I moved to Mascoutah to be in a nice, quiet community and I didn't move to be next to an airport. They're spoiling the town'

Voters seemed to feel strongly about the issue, whether they were for or against it.

"I moved to Mascoutah to be in a nice, quiet community and I didn't move to be next to an airport. They're spoiling the town," said one woman who was voting at Sixth Street Elementary School in Mascoutah. The woman, who said she has lived in Mascoutah for 17 years, did not wish to give her name.

But Denise Manning of O'Fallon said she voted yes for economic reasons.

"I figure when my kids are grown up, that's job possibilities for them," she said. Manning added she wasn't entirely convinced the idea of an airport is a good one, one way or the other.

But Maria Hardy of O'Fallon said she doesn't think the economic advantages would cancel out the many disadvantages on staff.

"It will cost more hardship than good," she said.

Hardy added that she used to work in Bridgeton, MO, near Lam bert.

"I've seen what it does to an area," she said, grimacing.

Richard Bossler, chairman of Conserve Our Present Environment, a group that opposes the proposed expansion, said he was pleased and encouraged by the results. He said several people told him they went out to vote on the issue alone.

"I think this ought to tell our state representative and chamber of commerce something about how the people feel," he said.

Hugh Enyart, who helped to get the question on the ballot as a part of his unsuccessful campaign to become O'Fallon Township super visor, said he was extremely pleased with the outcome of the referendum.

"It gave the concerned people a chance to voice their opinion with out having it (the proposal) rammed down their throats by the task force and other concerned groups," he said.

"It (the referendum) forced the task force to get off their duff and educate people on the values and the merits of the project—but they weren't convincing enough," Enyart said.

No one from the Joint-Use Citizens Committee, a group which favors the expansion, returned phone calls Wednesday.

Terrence Schaddel, airport planner and environmental officer for the Illinois Department of Transportation, said IDOT would not have an official comment until Thursday.

County Administrator Dan Maher, who urged the St. Clair County Board to agree to be the sponsor of the proposed airport, did not return phone calls Wednesday.

Some officials said they thought that putting the referendum on the ballot was premature since voters do not have all the facts yet.

"We definitely thought the call for a referendum was premature. All the facts aren't in yet," said Scott Schanuel, executive director of Belleville Economic Progress Inc., which has favored the proposal.

"We're still convinced that St. Clair County residents as a whole endorse this project," he said.

If the Air Force determines that the project is viable, Schanuel said the county is ready to proceed with its plans.

U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, said from his Washington office on Wednesday he was not surprised by the referendum's defeat.

"Frankly, I felt that it would have been beaten by a larger margin given that most of the opposition is located in those areas," Costello said.

He said he wished the referendum had been put on the ballot county-wide to give a better picture of how all the residents feel.

"I would encourage the people of St. Clair County to wait until all of the studies are completed to make a decision, and urge anyone—for or against—to contact their local officials," he said.

Costello said there would be no Congressional action until the Department of Defense and the Air Force complete their studies and St. Clair County decides it will go forward with the plans.

Before the county can look toward building the airport, the Air Force must complete an environmental impact study, which is expected to take about a year. If the Air Force approves the joint-use proposal, then the county can negotiate an agreement with the military.

If plans go through, a new runway would be built 7,000 feet east of the present one. Present civil air airport plans call for eight airline gates by the year 2005. The project would cost $183 million, according to airport planners.

Variety of SEMC lab programs cited during week

The laboratory at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City is celebrating National Medical Laboratory Week, April 9-15. The theme for the week is "The Laboratory Professional: Your Key to Quality Health Care."

"Lab workers aren't as visible as nurses and doctors," said Dr. Pamela Gronemeyer, medical director in the lab at SEMC. "But we are just as involved in patient care. The patients are very important to us. We seldom see them, but we still feel responsible for their recovery."

Laboratory professionals perform most of the 5 billion complex laboratory tests performed annually in the United States on fluid and tissue samples from patients.

These tests assist the physician in making correct clinical decisions. They can range from simple pre-marital blood tests to more complex procedures for detecting such diseases as diabetes, anemia and cancer.

These tests let the physician look inside the body to see changes that may occur before any outward symptoms, such as a fever or cough, develop. If the tests detect these changes in blood or body cells early enough, preventative action can be taken, or a more specific diagnosis can be made and a course of treatment selected.

There are several types of laboratory professionals including pathologists, technologists and technicians, phlebotomists and data processing personnel.

Pathologists are physicians who have taken four or more additional years of training after completing medical school. They are experts in the interpretation of laboratory tests to diagnose and treat disease.

They may specialize in surgical pathology, clinical pathology or specific laboratory disciplines. SEMC has three pathologists on staff: Dr. Robert Trinity, Dr. Gronemeyer and Dr. Aiman Hawasi. All are board certified in anatomical and clinical pathology. Dr. Trinity is the director of the lab.

Technologists and technicians are the fact-finders. They perform the complex tests which determine the absence, presence and cause of disease. The laboratory supervisor is Lori Stan-zell.

Typical medical technology programs involve two to four years of training. The medical technologist may also choose to specialize in a specific area of the lab, such as blood bank, microbiology, chemistry or hematology. This involves additional training.

The data processing personnel include programmers, people who enter data and those responsible for the dissemination of data.

Phlebotomists obtain the blood specimens.

"We have a lot of very advanced medical equipment," Dr. Gronemeyer said. "But it is useless if you don't have well-trained people to work with it. The machines don't give the answers. They give results that have to be interpreted."

"Some of the tests we do are literally matters of life or death. The results are very critical and the technologists have to be trained to interpret them correctly."

tions. They include:

- The blood bank is the area responsible for supplying blood products. Each unit of blood must be typed to determine its blood group and type, screened for antibodies and tested for contagious diseases. It must also be tested to assure that it is compatible with the patient's system.

- Microbiology is responsible for the identification of disease-causing bacteria, parasites or viruses. They also identify the appropriate antibiotic to be used in the treatment of bacterial infections.

- Hematology is responsible for studying the blood cells. Hematologists are involved in red and white blood cell counts and the microscopic examination of stained blood cells, to determine if the patient has anemia, leukemia or viral or bacterial infections.

- Cytology is responsible for screening human cell samples for early signs of cancer and other diseases. SEMC has two board certified cytologists on staff.

- Chemistry is responsible for running tests to determine the various levels of chemical components in a person's body. Fluctuations in the levels of these chemical components can reveal the presence of many medical conditions.

- Histology is responsible for preparing tissues removed from patients during surgery, so they can be examined by the pathologist.

The laboratory at St. Elizabeth Medical Center recently received a two-year accreditation by the College of American Pathologists (CAP).

In celebration of National Medical Laboratory Week, there will be a special Lab Spotlight in the hospital's Grapevine News. Posters will be put up throughout the medical center and associates from the lab will also be wearing National Medical Lab Week buttons.

Laboratory professionals from SEMC will be participating in a special exhibit at the Science Center in Forest Park.

"The exhibit is designed to show the public what lab professionals do and to encourage students to consider a career in the lab," said Dr. Gronemeyer. "Representatives from all the hospital labs in the metro area will be participating."

According to a national survey released by the American Society of Clinical Pathologists, 9 percent of the jobs for medical technologists are vacant.

In the area of cytology, the need is even greater. Approximately 14 percent of cytology positions are vacant.

"The laboratory field is growing. Advances in medical technology allow us to do more and more complex tests, which require more trained personnel. We hope exhibits like the one at the Science Center will encourage talented young people to enter the field," Dr. Gronemeyer said.

Julie Hellrich Earns Sibley scholarship

Julie Hellrich, a senior at Granite City High School, has accepted a Sibley Scholarship to attend Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., this fall.

Hellrich earned the scholarship through her participation in the college's annual Guy C. Motley scholarship program held Feb. 4 at the campus.

The daughter of James and Joyce Hellrich, she plans a career in administration and teaching high school mathematics.

Hellrich has been recognized as an Illinois State Scholar. A two-year member of "Who's Who Among American High School Students," she is a past vice president of the student council and belongs to the National Honor Society, science club, homecoming court and Citizens Advisory Council.

The students were taking part in an exercise during the workshop "Feeling Good About Yourself," part of the Teens 'N' Tact leadership conference at the Granite City Campus of Belleville Area College. Yvonne Klostermann (far left), assistant program supervisor of Coordinated Youth Services, led the workshop.

Alternative school workshop held

Thirteen representatives of Coordinated Youth Services in Granite City attended the 1989 Communities At-Risk Conference held in Springfield, Ill.

The annual three-day event is sponsored by the Illinois Alternative Education Association in conjunction with the Illinois Community Education Association and the Illinois Community Development Society.

Illinois State Sen. Richard Newhouse gave the keynote address while political reporter Kelly Smith of Springfield Channel 20 also spoke to the conference. Tom Grayson of the Illinois State Board of Education conducted a workshop, one of more than 25 focusing on problems and solutions for education and communities.

Cindy Gavilsky, program coordinator of the CYS Alternative Education Program, was another featured speaker at the conference.

Several successful citizen involvement projects from cities in Illinois were reviewed.

Donna Daisy, CYS executive director and a director of the Illinois Alternative Education Association, presented an award of appreciation to Bull McClard of the Illinois State Board of Education Office for his service to alternative education.

In addition, state officers for the Illinois Alternative Education Association were elected.

They are Henry Landi, president, Ken Freeman, secretary, and Vince Mitchell, treasurer.

Other CYS staff members attending were Yvonne Klostermann, Vicki Garrison, Donna January, Ralph Turner, Mike Vance, Marty Payeur, Betty Hudak, Al Leavell, Robert Speckart, Paula Hubbard and Lois Kopp.

ROBERT PACHECO of Granite City shows some of his tribal attire and artifacts to students at the Venice-Lincoln Technical Center.

Student shares Shoshoni Indian treasures at VLTC

Students and faculty of the Venice-Lincoln Technical Center recently got an unusual treat in the form of Robert Pacheco, a full-blooded Shoshoni Indian currently enrolled at the school.

Pacheco, of Granite City, brought several of his tribal Indian artifacts to a reading literature class taught by Dr. Alice Purdes.

Among the family heirlooms were a feathered headdress and ceremonial bustle that particularly excited the preschool children attending. The children also admired a prayer flute and beaded ceremonial attire.

All the students, both young and old, were fascinated with a small toy cradleboard with accompanying baby (papoose).

Pacheco also showed jewelry of the Southwest crafted from turquoise and silver, and male Indian ceremonial garb including beaded deer skin moccasins, belt and beaded buckle, beaded arm bands and matching necktie and

Other family treasures Pacheco shared were four embroidered shawls and a beaded purse which are more than 100 years old. They had been handed down for four generations from Pacheco's grandmother to mother to aunt to his daughter, Alisa.

A necktie made of an eagle's talons was as beautiful as it was strong, students commented. Once the sharp, curved talons and strong toes were used to grasp animals which the eagle ate, they now hung silently around Pacheco's neck, beaded in ceremonial attire.

Purdes was pleased by Pacheco's willingness to share his Indian heritage with all concerned, something she said Indians rarely do.

"Fortunately for us, Robert was 'brave' enough to share his Indian heritage with all concerned, leaving a lasting impression on everyone," Purdes said.

Alzheimer's battle has champions

U.S. corporations donated more than $4.6 billion to charity last year—an amount greater than the gross national products of 75 different countries.

While this might seem like small change compared to the $450 billion or so the federal government will spend on health, education, housing, and welfare during the current fiscal year, private-sector funding can't be measured in dollars alone. It provides something the government can't: freedom.

The federal government will spend more than $6 billion on biomedical research this year, funding the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and other government research centers and providing grants to hospitals and universities.

But federal funding comes with strings attached. Private grants often don't. And this can make a very big difference.

This is due to what scientists call "The Eureka Factor." Ideas are often the seeds of discovery. Government grants, replete with myriad forms, strict regulations, and deadlines, do not inspire creativity. They place grantees under intense pressure to produce something to satisfy their benefactors. This diverts valuable time from research and, worse, has occasionally prompted the fudging of data.

Unrestricted grants, however, free researchers to explore blind alleys, play hunches, and engage in the intellectual tinkering that leads to major breakthroughs without the threat of accountants and timekeepers second-guessing them.

How important is this? Consider one disease, Alzheimer's, which affects an estimated 7 percent of the over-65 population, about 2.5 million Americans. It's the fourth-leading cause of deaths each year, claiming some 120,000 lives. The Harvard Medical School Health Letter recently noted, barring changes, the increased elderly population will itself cause a 100 percent increase in the number of Alzheimer's patients by the year 2030.

Unlike AIDS, heart attacks, and even cancer, Alzheimer's brings prolonged death, typically taking five to 10 years. Eventually, most victims require 24-hour-a-day care, often in nursing homes, costing $30,000 to 40,000 per year or more in most metropolitan areas. Families can be bankrupted by the expenses.

According to the Alzheimer's Association, some $40 to $50 billion is spent each year to care for Alzheimer's victims. Double the patients and factor in even modest inflation, and the cost could easily top $100 billion by early in the next century. This doesn't include the costs of family members dropping from the workforce to care for loved ones, nor other indirect costs, estimated in a 1987 NIH report at an additional $39 billion. Discovering Alzheimer's secret, then, is not only an important medical matter, it's also an economic one.

The disease is a mystery. Scientists don't know the cause, and have found no cure. Thank goodness they keep searching.

The federal government provides only modest funding for Alzheimer's research. Whatever is learned, therefore, is likely to result from private-sector action.

The battle against Alzheimer's does have champions. Bristol-Myers Co., for example, has given more than $20 million in medical research grants during the past decade, and last year made a five-year financial commitment of $2.5 million to neuroscientific research. Among those to whom Bristol-Myers is providing seed money are University of California (UC), San Diego, researchers who are looking at regrowing damaged nerves and controlling neurological disorders by implanting genetically engineered brain cells.

In diseases, such as Alzheimer's and Parkinson's, certain brain cells stop working properly.

To treat Parkinson's, wherein the brain loses its ability to make a "neurotransmitter" called dopamine, UC researchers are hoping surgeons will someday be able to take cells from a patient's body, genetically modify them so they manufacture dopamine, then implant them in the brain, where they would manufacture the chemicals needed for a return to normalcy. The UC team has had some notable success with aged rats with learning and memory impairments similar to those found in Alzheimer's patients.

Corporations and their foundations have traditionally been generous supporters of medical research and treatment programs. Some $2.9 million has been donated to cancer research since 1978 through the General Motors Cancer Research Foundation. SmithKline Beckman

Corp.'s foundation is a key supporter of the Philadelphia area's poison control center. The Adolph Coors Co. purchased equipment for the Colorado Optometric Center to treat the area's poor. And the Alcoa Foundation is helping to determine the degree to which specially designed adult day-care can postpone institutionalizing Alzheimer's patients.

Corporate grant-makers can't compete dollar for dollar with government, but they offer something government can't: intellectual freedom. And the history of medical research shows, it's from these "little acorns that tall oaks grow."

Unless you're over age 70, file a Social Security report

By Bill Hunot
Social Security Administration

Following are frequent questions posed of the Social Security Administration.

Q. I drew Social Security retirement benefits last year. I have filed my income tax return, but do I have to report my earnings to Social Security, too?

A. Unless you were fully retired in 1988 or over age 70 for the whole year, you have to file a report with Social Security in addition to filing your tax return with the IRS.

For Social Security purposes, persons are fully retired and may draw all of their checks for the year if they earn less than certain limits. In 1988 recipients under age 65 could earn no more than $6,120 and still draw full Social Security. Those age 65 or older could earn no more than $8,400. If more than those amounts is earned, payments are reduced by $1 for every $2 that is earned over the limit.

All who received Social Security benefits during 1988 and earned over their limit must make a report of the exact earnings by April 17. If needed, adjustments are made to reconcile any underpayment or overpayment.

Q. I have heard that Social Security wants everyone to send for a benefit estimate. Why should I? I'm years away from retirement.

A. It's never too soon to start planning for retirement. By starting your retirement planning now you will have a realistic idea of what you can expect from Social Security. And you will have time to consider saving and investing to supplement your Social Security benefits.

Social Security does not replace all of the earnings you lose when you retire.

To get an estimate of your future Social Security benefits call Social Security at 800-254-5772 and ask for Form SSA-7004.

Q. I got something in the mail the other day that says people born in the years 1917 to 1921 get lower Social Security benefits. Why is this? My neighbor says it's because of "the notch."

A. The notch refers to the difference in benefit levels due to changes in the law made in 1977.

Everyone born after 1916 is affected by the notch, not just people born in 1917 to 1921 or people born 1917 to 1928, as many people mistakenly believe.

In 1972 automatic cost-of-living adjustments began for Social Security recipients. Because of a flaw in the way the adjustments were made, the cost of living adjustments were overcompensating for inflation, and benefits were growing at a much faster rate than anticipated.

In 1977 Congress corrected the flaw. The result was a change in benefit calculations that result in lower benefits than under the old, flawed system of calculation.

Q. I have been going to the chiropractor for years for a back problem. Now I am on Medicare. Will Medicare help pay for chiropractic treatment?

A. With one exception, Medicare does not help pay for a chiropractor's services.

The only chiropractic treatment covered by Medicare is manual manipulation of the spine to correct subluxation that can be demonstrated by X-ray. I'm sure your chiropractor would know what that means.

Publisher promises uniqueness in new daily

By Joe Holleman
Staff affiliate

ST. LOUIS — Of all the things the St. Louis Sun could be, the new daily newspaper slated to debut in September will not be conventional or predictable, said Thomas M. Tallarico, the newspaper's publisher.

"It's going to be different," Tallarico said of the tabloid to be published by Ingersoll Publications Co.

Tallarico, 44, served as general manager of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch from June 1986 until he resigned from the post on March 28, the same day the arrival of the new daily was announced by Ralph Ingersoll II, chairman and chief executive officer of Ingersoll Publications.

Tallarico said he is not bringing the Post-Dispatch method of newspapering with him to the St. Louis Sun.

"We need to differentiate ourselves (from the Post-Dispatch), which is going to be the easiest thing in the world to do," Tallarico said.

The corporate vision of the new newspaper will be unique to the area, as are the underlying management philosophies it will use, Tallarico said.

The St. Louis Sun can succeed with a staff that has 200 fewer editorial employees than the Post, and without its employees being represented by the St. Louis Newspaper Guild, Tallarico says. The St. Louis Sun will have an editorial staff of between 80 and 90 employees, he says.

"That's the managing editor, the whole shooting match. That's the photographers, the photo lab, the clerks, the secretaries, everything," he says.

The difference in the size of the two newspaper staffs is not an indication that the Post-Dispatch is top-heavy with editorial employees, Tallarico said. But it is also faulty to conclude that the St. Louis Sun needs the same size staff as the Post-Dispatch to compete with that newspaper, he said.

"We're going to be more focused," Tallarico says. "We're going to decide what we think is important. That's one of the functions of an editor, whether you have 500 or 10 (employees)," he says. "There probably are events that will not be covered by the Sun that the Post-Dispatch attempts to cover."

Tallarico believes the environment he hopes to create at the St. Louis Sun will eliminate the desire of workers there to seek collective bargaining representation by the guild.

Most of the editorial employees at the Post-Dispatch are represented by the guild.

"We don't envision that our colleagues at the Sun are going to find it desirable or in their best interest to join the union," Tallarico said. "But ultimately, it's the decision of the employee and not the employer."

Tallarico acknowledges, however, that many employees interpret the term "best interest" as salary, and he said the St. Louis Sun will pay the salaries needed to attract a talented staff.

"We're going to have talented people," he says. "And talented people deserve to have an above-market compensation package. Talented people, by definition, should have a wide choice of career opportunities, and those are the kind of people we want."

"That means to attract, to get them, you're going to have to pay," he said.

There will be no salary scales and pay will be based on performance and contribution to the enterprise," Tallarico said.

The St. Louis Sun plans to foster a "caring and collegial working environment with little concern to hierarchy and structure," he said.

The result will be evident in the paper's content, opinion and appearance.

"We're going to pay much more attention to local, St. Louis news and items of interest," Tallarico says, adding that international and national news reporting will be downplayed.

As an example, Tallarico pointed out a recent Post-Dispatch front page headline stating a former Soviet official had won a city election in Moscow.

"I doubt that you'd ever see that on the front page of the St. Louis Sun," he says.

The St. Louis Sun's editorial stance will differ from that of the Post-Dispatch, which is considered liberal. But Tallarico hopes the difference will not be characterized by a label.

"We're trying to avoid any of the conventional labels that people attach to newspapers," he says. "They've tried to pin us down as to 'Are we going to be more conservative than the Post, or are we going to be a liberal paper, or are we going to champion the cause of blacks, or are we going to be entertainment oriented."

"We're going to be different," Tallarico promises, "but avoiding labels doesn't mean avoiding controversy." Our position will be clearly articulated when we take a position, we will not waffle."

Tallarico also said it is difficult to describe a newspaper that has yet to be printed, but stresses that the St. Louis Sun will not be "sensationalist."

He also says it will not be a St. Louis version of USA Today.

"I'd only draw a comparison to USA Today in the sense that the concept underlying USA Today was a totally new, innovative design and use of color," Tallarico says.

USA Today, which critics have called "the junk food" of newspapers because of its brief treatment of most news stories, puts a premium on short news stories. So will the St. Louis Sun.

"We're not going to have hard and fast rules (on story length), but the emphasis is going to be on very tight editing. Provide the reader with the essentials of the story without being boring," Tallarico said.

An underlying theme of the St. Louis Sun will be that "time is a precious commodity," he said.

"Our mission is to provide (the readers with) what they need to know without asking them for an enormous time commitment."

Tallarico 'betting career' on launch of newspaper

Thomas M. Tallarico is the man "who is betting his career" that the St. Louis Sun can succeed.

That description was provided March 28 by Ralph Ingersoll II, chairman and chief executive officer of the St. Louis Sun's parent company, Ingersoll Publications Co.

About five hours before Ingersoll announced the arrival of the St. Louis Sun, Tallarico resigned his post as general manager of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, currently the area's only major daily newspaper.

"I like competitive newspapering, that was the attraction," Tallarico said of his job switch.

Tallarico said he missed the competition to which he was accustomed at his jobs before the Post-Dispatch. He has held executive positions at both the Chicago Sun-Times and the Dallas Times-Herald. Those publications are pitted against newspapers with larger circulation figures.

His new mission is a "one-in-a-lifetime opportunity to start up from scratch, to be able to choose your own management team, your own staff," Tallarico said.

His idea of what type of people should man the St. Louis Sun is compatible with Ingersoll's views, he added.

Tallarico described ideal employees of the new newspaper as "risk-takers, highly motivated" who are willing to "break out of the traditional newspaper mold."

While Tallarico is ebullient about his new role, he admits some former colleagues at the Post-Dispatch hold ill feelings about his move.

"I find it unfortunate," Tallarico said of the situation. "I'd like them to understand that I did not leave because of any dissatisfaction with the Post-Dispatch or any of my colleagues there."

"On my value scale, the most important thing to me is integrity. In my dealing with people, I tried to handle this with the highest level of integrity," Tallarico said.

Nicholas G. Penniman IV, publisher and acting general manager of the Post-Dispatch, declined to discuss Tallarico's resignation, but said he did not harbor any animosity toward him.

"There's a great sense of disappointment (about Tallarico's leaving), and I'd like to leave it at that," Penniman said.

Tallarico said the Ingersoll job offer came "just days" before the March 28 announcement and he did not decide to accept the offer until the early hours of March 28.

"It was one o'clock in the morning or thereabouts when Bob Jelenic (president of the St. Louis Sun) and Ralph and I all shook hands and the deal was finalized," Tallarico said.

"I would defy anybody to say that I made any decision or took any action at the Post that, even in hindsight, could be viewed as detrimental to their (the Post's) best interest."

Tallarico also said Ingersoll's negotiating with a Post executive could have backfired on the St. Louis Sun's efforts. When his discussions with Ingersoll and Jelenic began, he told them he might decline the offer.

Pets

By Dorothy English

Owners giving problems

Living with people has caused many pets to suffer from the same problems as their owners. Pets do not need a lot of exercise but they do need consistent exercise. Like people, pets can't sit around for days and then get out and exercise vigorously with-out ill effect.

More and more pets are suffering from the effects of over-eating and inactivity. Heart disease, arthritis, obesity and shortened life spans are seen in many pets. As with people, infectious diseases are being controlled but lifestyle diseases are taking their places.

Take time to check your pet and decide if it is overweight. If it looks fat, it is. That's simple enough. In some heavily coated dogs, it is harder to tell by looking. Your hands should tell you quickly enough. If you can't feel the ribs easily, the dog is fat. Ribs should not be sticking out but should be felt without bulging for them. A dog with ideal weight may look thin to most people. However, cats of proper weight may have a natural "sag" under the abdominal region.

If you have any doubt as to the condition of your pet, your veterinarian can tell you—probably over the phone if your pet has been examined recently. A good groomer can tell you if a pet is overweight and may even point it out unasked.

An obese pet will benefit greatly if the following steps are taken. Rather than do everything at once, take it one step at a time to avoid a drastic change in the lifestyle of the pet or the indulgent owner.

The first step is to stop adding fat and all goodies to the pet's regular feedings. Gravy, drippings, leftovers and the like should not be mixed in with the regular food.

The second step is to eliminate between-meal feedings. Fatty bones, dog biscuits, or any other treats should not be given between meals.

Thirdly, cut back the daily amount fed to about half or two-thirds the original amount. This should be done slowly to allow the pet to adjust to the change without stress.

This would be a good time to take a good look at what is being fed to the pet. Like many human foods, a lot of pet foods contain excess sugar. This is particularly true of the semi-moist foods.

When the diet is under control, one can think about exercise. Pets have to start slowly with this, just like people. A short, brisk walk every day that works up to 30 minutes will benefit most dogs and their owners. Do not try to force an out-of-condition pet to exercise too much.

When planning an exercise routine, take into consideration the size and type of dog as well as its age. A young collie and an elderly dachshund cannot be expected to exercise the same amount.

Cats are not fond of long walks but can be exercised by using their hunting instincts. A lot of fake fur on a string will get them on the move. Cats should be exercised in the evening because this is the time they tend to be most active and responsive.

It takes a little effort to get a pet in shape. However, it is worth the effort and can be one more activity shared by the pet and owner.

Water firm service now 24 hours long

Effective April 1, Illinois-American Water Company expanded its customer service department to a 24-hour, 7-day-a-week operation for its customers.

Customers in the Granite City area will be able to call the 24-hour Hotline, a toll-free telephone number, 1-800-422-2782, to contact any customer service business, inquire about a bill or payment, initiate or terminate service, or inquire about any aspect of their water service.

The 24-Hour Hotline will also handle any emergency or "after-hour" calls.

Expansion of hours is the second phase of Illinois-American Water Company's program to improve and centralize customer service in Illinois.

Diving event to raise Dream Factory funds

The Bubblemasters Dive Club, based in Granite City, will hold a 24-hour Dive-A-Thon at the Alton YWCA to benefit the Dream Factory of St. Louis.

Scuba and skin divers, swimmers and anybody else interested are invited to participate. The event will be held from noon Saturday, April 29, to noon that Sunday.

The Dream Factory is one of 32 chapters of an organization that grants the wishes of seriously ill children between the ages of 3 and 13.

Volunteers are being asked to sponsor themselves or get sponsors who will donate money for each hour spent in the pool and/or each lap swim. Donations are tax-deductible.

Only certified divers will be allowed to participate in self-contained underwater breathing apparatus events, but instructors will be on hand to instruct novices for a small donation.

An auction is also planned, and refreshments will be supplied.

For more information, the phone numbers are 465-7774 or 931-6275.

Legislation seeks to keep hospitals open

WASHINGTON—U.S. Sen. Paul Simon is sponsoring legislation to prevent more hospitals from closing the way White Hall Hospital in Greene County did last year.

The bill is sponsored by 160 senators and representatives from both parties. Simon is chief sponsor of the bill.

Simon said White Hall was among 32 hospitals that closed in Illinois since 1980.

"It's not just 32 hospitals in Illinois; it's where they are closing in rural, poor areas. They're closing in urban, poor areas. It's the people that are affected—the elderly, the poor," Simon said.

Illinois ranked fourth in the nation in hospital closings, according to figures released by Simon's office.

"There is no question that lack of Medicare funding closed hospitals in Illinois as well as other states," Simon said.

The bill would enact a one-year reprieve in Medicare budget cuts that have led to the closing of one hospital every five days since 1982, according to Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan.

"Small, rural hospitals have been particularly hard hit," she said.

Cuts in Medicare have been discussed as a means of cutting the federal budget deficits.

"Medicare cuts already on the books will plunge hundreds of hospitals more deeply into the red this year, stepping up the pace of hospital closures and threatening the quality of care to seniors and the poor," said Dave Carle, a spokesman for Simon.

"And there is no question we're going to see more hospital closures in Illinois," said Simon.

Club seeks civic project

A new civic project is being sought by members of the Garden Study Club of Granite City, according to President Mary Stomum.

Shrubs and trees may be planted by members only on property owned by non-profit organizations, she explained.

The club planted at the Main Fire Station in the 2300 block of Madison Avenue and continues to maintain flower beds at the Pontoon Beach Senior Citizen Center and Old Six-Mile Historical Museum.

Only one new project can be accepted this season by the garden club, Stomum said.

Persons wishing to have a spring planting project considered by the club are asked to call 931-3877 before April 28.

A vote will be taken on May 3 to determine which project to sponsor this year, Stomum said.

Application process streamlined to receive FMHA drought aid

For Madison and St. Clair counties farmers who might be eligible for a drought loan, but have not applied because of the amount of paperwork involved, an abbreviated and streamlined application process has been adopted by the local FMHA (Farmers Home Administration) office.

"The deadline for applying for this program is April 17," said Gary Mersinger, county supervisor for both counties.

Legislation decreases discrimination

By Ellen O'Brien

The Fair Housing Amendments Act of 1988, which took effect recently, represents a vital step toward stamping out housing discrimination nationwide, according to the National Association of Realtors.

The law, enacted last September, extends anti-discrimination protection to the disabled and families with children, and strengthens the enforcement authority of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) — the government branch charged with administering federal fair housing laws.

The stronger enforcement was long overdue, as was a quicker process for hearing fair housing complaints. Under the fair housing law enacted in 1968, HUD had no authority to pursue fair housing complaints if remedies through the department's conciliation efforts failed. Further recourse was left solely to the aggrieved party.

Now, HUD is authorized to bring fair housing complaints before its own administrative law judge (ALJ). Or, HUD will refer complaints to the Department of Justice (DOJ), if either the aggrieved party, respondent, or HUD elects a trial in federal district court. An ALJ hearing must begin within 120 days after HUD issues a charge. Or, if a jury trial requested, HUD has to authorize civil action by DOJ within 30 days after the request.

Although NAR and civil rights groups supported a new system to expedite and strengthen enforcement of the fair housing law, NAR questioned the constitutionality of the ALJ process. The jury trial option was viewed as the compromise that brought NAR and the civil rights groups together in support of the 1988 act.

The full impact of the law's coverage for families with children and for the physically and mentally impaired cannot be assessed until the law has been in effect for some time. The protection for the handicapped includes specific design requirements for new multifamily dwellings available for first occupancy after March 13, 1991. All units in new buildings with four or more units must be accessible and adaptable to wheelchair users, if the building has an elevator. In buildings with no elevators, only ground-floor units are covered by the construction requirements.

The 1988 amendments act strengthened the remedies provided by the 1969 law for fair housing violations, removing a $1,000 cap on punitive damages awarded in court cases brought by private individuals. Civil penalties ranging from $50,000 to $100,000 could be imposed.

It will not be permissible to exclude the handicapped or families with children from units on upper floors of high-rise buildings based on the assertion that such dwellings per se would present health or safety risks. One result of the coverage extended to families with children is the end of "adult-only" communities designed to appeal mainly to young, childless professionals.

The act does, however, exempt certain types of elderly housing projects from requiring access to families with children. Specifically, exempt projects are communities intended for, and solely occupied by, residents age 62 or older. Other exempt communities are those in which at least 80 percent of the units in a housing facility are occupied by at least one person age 55 or older, and which provide significant facilities and services designed to meet the needs of the elderly.

Under the 1988 act, people found guilty of violating fair housing laws could, in some cases, face stiff penalties in addition to liability for damages.

An ALJ would be able to award compensatory damages, injunctive and other equitable relief to the aggrieved party, and impose civil penalties ranging from $10,000 to $50,000. In injury cases, the courts could grant compensatory and punitive damages, as well as permanent or temporary injunctions and other orders for affirmative action.

The 1988 amendments act also strengthened the remedies provided by the 1969 law for fair housing violations, removing a $1,000 cap on punitive damages awarded in court cases brought by private individuals. Civil penalties ranging from $50,000 to $100,000, as well as monetary damages, could be imposed in pattern of practice cases filed by the DOJ.

NAR will continue to seek legislation prohibiting the use of race-conscious methods to achieve or maintain a certain level of integration. Integration maintenance plans, now used in some localities, actually deprive individuals who are otherwise qualified from renting or buying a unit if they are not of the race necessary to sustain the racial mix sought.

National study of drug use shows low St. Louis level

By Craig A. Martin
Staff affiliate

St. Louis has a lower level of drug use than most other major American cities, according to recent results of an ongoing study being done cooperatively by city police and the National Institute of Justice.

The study, the Drug Use Forecasting program, is being conducted in the 25 largest U.S. cities. It involves voluntary testing of people arrested for misdemeanors and felonies and excludes those arrested for traffic offenses.

St. Louis ranked in the bottom three cities in marijuana use and was in the lower half of the cities tested in cocaine use, said Scott H. Decker, project supervisor for DUF in St. Louis.

PCPs, a group of strong hallucinogens, were the only drug group in which St. Louis tested above average, Decker said. In the St. Louis portion of the study, men and women who were arrested during testing periods were interviewed and asked for urine samples prior to appearing in court.

In St. Louis, more than 90 percent of those interviewed provided a urine sample during the two separate testing periods, the first in October and the second in January.

The sampling was structured so that no more than 20 percent of the men tested had been arrested on drug offenses. Because fewer women are arrested and the study sought a large sampling, results for women were used regardless of the charge.

Still, results showed that 64 percent of males and 57 percent of females tested positive for illegal drug use. "The results show that a large number of those who commit crimes use drugs," Decker said. "However, there is no way to tell from this study whether or not there is a causal link between drugs and crime."

Decker said the program is not designed to determine whether there is a link between drugs and crime, but only the extent of drug use in the cities tested. The study shows that the drug of choice in St. Louis is cocaine.

Of the males tested in January, 47 percent tested positive for cocaine use, and 44 percent of females tested showed evidence of using the drug.

A quarter of the males tested in January tested positive for marijuana use, and tests showed 15 percent of females had used the drug.

"Cocaine replaced marijuana as the drug of choice sometime in the early '80s," Decker said. "That trend holds true in most cities, except some cities on the West Coast where marijuana use is still high."

Cocaine is becoming more popular because marijuana is not as profitable, Decker said.

"First of all, I think it is a mistake to exclude the laws of supply and demand from the illicit drug market," he said. "Marijuana has a lower profit margin, it is bulkier to ship, and is therefore easier to detect."

One of the "ironies of enforcement" in the illicit drug market is that as more and more marijuana shipments are being seized, more and more drug suppliers are turning to cocaine because of its higher profits and easier concealment, he said.

"An amount of marijuana needed to make a $1,000 profit, for example, would be much, much harder to hide than the small amount of cocaine it would take to turn the same profit. Which would you ship?"

The program will do another sampling in April and again every quarter for the next five years.

"We hope that, after a year or two we will begin to see some trends develop," Decker said. "Then the data can be really useful."

St. Louis federal workers getting child care center

WASHINGTON — The federal General Services Administration will open a child-care center for federal workers in St. Louis in August 1990, GSA officials said after the agency's acting administrator told Congress of his commitment to child care.

The 5,000-square-foot facility will be incorporated into the Robert A. Young building on South Tucker Street, said Jack Nesbitt of the GSA's Kansas City office. It will have the capacity to serve 100 children.

"I'm not sure exactly what it is costing to build," Nesbitt said. It is part of the costs of renovating the whole building.

Nesbitt's remarks came after congressional subcommittee hearing on Wednesday, where acting GSA administrator Richard Austin stressed the commitment to child care for children of federal workers.

Rep. Cardin Collins, an Illinois Democrat who chairs the committee on Government Operations subcommittee on Government Activities and Transportation, had expressed concern that the agency planned to put day care programs on the back burner and "withdraw into its bureaucratic shell."

But Austin said 23 child-care centers will be opened for federal workers this year, and the agency is working with other branches of the government to identify additional centers to be opened in future years.

The federal government currently has 46 child-care centers in operation, caring for more than 1,800 children, he said. Construction costs for the centers ranged between $40 and $50 per square foot, he said.

"We at GSA take great pride in our accomplishments since undertaking the task of establishing child-care centers in federal communities where there is a demonstrated need," Austin said. "GSA is meeting, and will continue to meet, the needs of federal employees and agencies for on site child-care facilities."

Panel announces reform of car rental information

WASHINGTON — Illinois Attorney General Neil F. Hartigan, chairman of the Consumer Protection Committee of the National Association of Attorneys General (NAAG), recently announced nationwide guidelines for advertising of car rentals, including the controversial collision damage waiver.

Hartigan issued a strong warning to consumers to "not be misled by claims of car rental agencies that the new guidelines will result in higher charges."

"These guidelines spell out the provisions of the contract the customer signs when he or she rents a car," Hartigan said. "These new policies will put an end to those unwelcome surprises many customers experience when they rent a car, expecting to pay a given amount, but wind up with a bill many times that amount."

"I call these guidelines our 'no surprises' car rental policy. Under these guidelines, it will be considered deceptive practice to advertise a price which is less than what the consumer is required to pay."

The guidelines were approved at the spring meeting of the National Association of Attorneys General and go into effect April 1.

Kansas Attorney General Robert T. Stephan headed the task force that prepared the rental car study and appeared at the press conference with Hartigan.

The guidelines require that rental agencies disclose all mandatory charges and restrictions prior to accepting reservations. "When we at NAAG began this project," Hartigan said, "rental car ads routinely promised low prices that were in fact a complete fiction, with a bewildering variety of surcharges, fees and other mandatory add-ons that drove the final price much higher."

"Already, our prove of the industry has led to sweeping reforms in advertising practices. We hope that these guidelines will allow rental companies to compete vigorously without feeling that they have to resort to deceptive practices of the past."

'These guidelines spell out the provisions of the contract the customer signs when he or she rents a car. I call these guidelines our 'no surprises' car rental policy.'

Attorney General Neil F. Hartigan

A knotty problem faced by the task force was complaints about mandatory charges instituted by the car rental companies to cover collision damage.

In some instances, renters were being held responsible for damage up to the full value of the car, even if they were not at fault. There were also complaints about cost and pressure tactics by car companies.

The NAAG guidelines give individual states the alternative to passing new laws eliminating the damage waiver, limiting consumer liability except where damage is intentional, or of permitting damage charges but limiting them to reasonable amounts.

The alternatives include a new Illinois law, the first in the nation, which prohibits rental car companies from holding customers liable for any damage exceeding $200 except in specific instances including intentional damage.

The NAAG guidelines will require all print ads to disclose the price of any damage waiver policy, to list any restrictions of drivers and to spell out the number of "free" miles and the per-mile cost thereafter.

Expiration dates on rental offers, blackout periods, reservation requirements and early and late penalties must also be spelled out.

"While these guidelines protect the consumer, they do not unduly hamper car rental companies and their advertising media from delivering their messages to the rental customers," Hartigan said.

Broadcasters will be required to make only four disclosures: price or price range of collision insurance, mileage limitations and charges, non-availability at some locations if applicable, and expiration date of offer if it is less than 30 days.

Still under study by the NAAG task force are improvements sought in the computerized reservation system used by travel agents so that customers can do good comparison shopping.

"Because of the present methods of computer display, car rental information given consumers is often misleading and does not permit the consumers the opportunity to make informed decisions," Hartigan said.

"Even skilled agents must now spend excessive time identifying these cost factors and the task force is meeting with representatives of the reservation systems to explore software improvements to resolve this problem."

Spring marks start of '89 ozone season

Illinois Environmental Protection Agency Director Bernard P. Killian has issued a reminder that the ozone season, which runs from April until October, has begun in Illinois. The most conducive weather conditions for the formation of ozone usually occur in June, July and August.

Ozone is harmful to crops, plants, trees and human health, especially to elderly persons, children and people with heart and respiratory disease. Pregnant women, active athletes and smokers also may be affected by high ozone levels.

Some of the symptoms of high ozone levels include fatigue, headaches, eye and throat irritation, chest discomfort, coughing and wheezing. Last year, 20 days of unhealthy air quality occurred in Metro East. Those who wish more information regarding air quality statements or advisories may contact the IEPA at (217) 782-6562.

Volunteers at mental center to be honored

The Illinois Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities is recognizing the efforts of volunteers at the Alton Mental Health and Developmental Center in conjunction with observance of National Volunteer Week on April 9-15.

The center's Volunteer Recognition Service will be at 1:30 p.m. today (Wednesday) in the center's auditorium. The volunteers will each receive certificates of appreciation, and refreshments will be served.

More than 20 individuals and 43 groups have been involved in volunteer activities at Alton during the past 12 months. They act as companions, sponsor social activities, provide games and entertainment, conduct religious services, conduct self-help programs, donate items, and assist staff in therapeutic and recreational programs.

Illinois establishes presence in Moscow

Illinois became the first state to establish a trade presence in the Soviet Union as Gov. James R. Thompson last week officially announced the opening of Illinois' new trade facility in Moscow.

Thompson emphasized that the state does not expect to see immediate results from the Moscow trade presence. The Department of Commerce and Community Affairs' Chicago-based International Business Division will screen businesses to identify those with the greatest potential for the Soviet marketplace. Those businesses will then receive specialized assistance from the Moscow team.

Extra Medicaid to four area hospitals

"Although more hospital beds are going empty, the Illinois Department of Public Aid still plans to give another $5 million to 38 hospitals with large percentages of Medicaid patients," Public Aid Director Susan S. Suter said April 4.

St. Mary's in East St. Louis will receive $233,322, Centerville Township Hospital $87,009, Gateway Community of East St. Louis is $76,031 and St. Anthony's of Alton $48,215.

"Empty beds may be the most serious challenge facing the hospital industry in Illinois and across the nation," Suter said. "Government and taxpayers cannot subsidize the cost of empty beds, which drain both the hospital industry and our resources."

"However, we do intend to provide substantial supplemental funds to the hospitals treating heavy shares of Medicaid patients," she said.

The department disburses federal and state money to hospitals providing care to Illinoisans receiving Medicaid.

The $5 million in "disproportionate-share payments" is in addition to a total $816 million provided to hospitals by the department in fiscal year 1988.

"While there is a great need everywhere, we are keeping our commitment to help these hospitals," Suter said. "But the problems of the hospital industry transcend our ability to pay for them."

"Inpatient days and lengths of stay are falling, the cost of medical technology is increasing, and insurers are reviewing payments more closely, leading to more empty beds," she said.

"Illinois Department of Public Health records and American Hospital Association data show that 27 percent of the 44,000 'staffed' hospital beds in Illinois are empty daily. And when 13,000 licenses but unused beds are added, the empty bed percentage soars to 47 percent."

Suter said that in 1982, 32 percent of all hospital beds in the state were empty, a figure which rose to 45 percent by 1986.

"Our limited taxpayer dollars cannot insulate the industry from the unlimited challenges of a changing marketplace," Suter said. "Ultimately, the hospital industry must develop new efficiencies to help us out."

Child care tax credit available for parents

As April 15 draws near, the pitter-patter of tiny feet on the bare living room floor may remind harried parents of yet another tax deduction to be taken.

Parents who pay for child care can receive a break on federal income tax by claiming the dependent-care tax credit.

Sometimes called the "child care credit" or "day-care credit," this assistance is the largest source of federal financial help for the care of children and elderly and disabled dependents.

The credit provides about $3.1 billion a year to taxpayers. Families claiming the credit saved an average of $371 on their taxes for 1985.

You can claim the dependent-care credit if you pay for someone to care for your child under age 15, or for a spouse or dependent who is incapable of caring for himself or herself while you work or look for work.

Generally, if you are married, you can claim the credit only for expenses incurred in order to enable both spouses to work or look for work, but there are special rules if one spouse is disabled or a full-time student.

Family day-care at home, child care in a center, baby-sitters, after-school care and nursery schools fall into the child care category. If parents are divorced or separated, the parent with custody of the child most of the time may usually claim the credit.

Each year, expenses that qualify for the credit may total $2,400 for one child or dependent who was cared for, or if two or more were cared for, up to $4,800. Expenses cannot exceed the lower-earning spouse's earned income.

This overview of the dependent-care credit is necessarily incomplete and does not constitute tax advice or legal representation. An Internal Revenue Service spokesman said.

For more complete details on the dependent-care credit, tax forms and publications are available by calling the IRS toll free at 1-800-424-3676.

Hartigan recovers funds

Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) in Illinois announced that Attorney General Neil F. Hartigan has successfully recovered $12,591 from fraudulent fund raisers.

As a result of his legal actions, MADD was presented with checks totaling the full amount of funds solicited by individuals who were using the organization's name without authorization. The solicitations occurred last September in the Rockford area, Hartigan said.

Direct deposit offers ease, safety for Social Security

Many people who receive Social Security or supplemental security income (SSI) benefits are not at home waiting for the mailman when their checks are delivered. They are visiting, vacationing, taking care of business, or doing whatever else they want to do.

Why? Because they have direct deposit. In other words, they have their checks deposited into their checking or savings account at their bank, credit union, or other financial institution.

The following questions and answers about direct deposit were prepared by Oliver M. Holmes, district manager of the East St. Louis Social Security Office.

Q. I receive a widow's monthly Social Security check and am concerned about safety. I am thinking about switching over to direct deposit. If I do this, how will I find out about other things, like Medicare?

A. Even if you have your check deposited directly in your savings or checking account, you will still receive other correspondence from Social Security at your mailing address.

When you receive your payments from Social Security by direct deposit, it is necessary for you to notify us of your current address to ensure that you get the latest notices from us without delay.

Q. I will be filing for Social Security retirement benefits next month and want my Social Security checks to be direct deposited in my checking account at the bank. My neighbor tells me I have to receive my first check at home and then I can have them changed to go to the bank. Is this true?

A. No. Your first check can be sent to the bank without any problems. When you file with us, you will need to have available a check or bank statement in order for us to have your checking account number and the bank's routing number.

Q. My aunt receives SSI checks. This morning she called me in a panic and told me she had misplaced her check and now does not have money to pay her monthly bills. What should she do?

A. She should contact the Social Security office and report having misplaced her check. Social Security will process information about the check and a replacement check will be mailed to her.

If she later finds the missing check, she must return the original one immediately to Social Security.

This would be a good time to discuss direct deposit with her. With direct deposit, her checks would be electronically deposited in her checking or savings account, a much safer way to receive her payments.

For more information about direct deposit, readers may call 1-822-9430.

GRANITE CITY — Recycling will be a key ingredient for this Saturday's "Stash Trash" clean-up day, as hundreds of local residents tackle litter along several main thoroughfares.

Greg Mathes, general manager at Waste Management Systems Inc. in Granite City, said his company will have recycling units at four locations Saturday: Oakmont Shopping Center on Pontoon Road in Pontoon Beach; National Food Store at Madison Avenue and Nameoki Road in Granite City; Huck's convenience store at Niedringhaus and Madison avenues in Granite City; and the First National Bank in Madison, Sixth Street and Madison Avenue.

The units will be in place from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The recycling containers are divided into areas for glass, aluminum and paper.

Because money can be obtained by recycling items, proceeds will go to the Cahokia Mound Boy Scout Council and the River View Girl Scout Council, Mathes said.

"My philosophy is 'Why throw away things you can use?'" said Mathes. "Especially when you can save landfill space and generate revenue."

Nearly 2,000 people, many of them Scouts, will be involved during the 10th annual city cleanup, sponsored by the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

Mary Brown, chairman of the chamber's Community Pride committee, said 18 "teams" have volunteered to scout areas at highways, including Illinois 203 from Interstate 70 to Madison Avenue; and Illinois 3, from the interstate as far south as possible. A golf theme is being used, and teams will compete to see how much trash they can accumulate, Brown said.

Teams not previously listed include the Assembly of God Church in Granite City and the P.T.S. honorary society.

A lunch will be given at Wilson Park beginning at 11:30 a.m., courtesy of Pepsi-Cola, National and Shop 'n' Save. Others helping out are Capri Sun and Cohen's grocery.

Anyone wishing to participate in Saturday's cleanup should call the chamber office, 1831 Delmar Ave., for assignments. Someone will be at the office Friday from 4 to 7 p.m. and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The phone number is 876-6400.

Convention center may trigger hotel boom

By Roger McGrath
Staff affiliate

St. Louis area hotel room rates and occupancy rates are too low to attract the interest of big hotel chains to downtown sites, hospitality officials say. But that stance could change by mid-1992 when the expanded Cervantes Convention Center opens, they add, and the ripple effect could reach miles beyond the downtown area.

"With the announcement of the expansion, we've seen some renewed interest in a hotel downtown," says Dennis Coleman, executive director of the Economic Development Corp. of the City of St. Louis.

Downtown's most pressing need is an 800- to 1,000-room "convention" hotel within a block of the expanded convention center, officials say.

A feasibility study conducted several years ago estimated St. Louis needed up to 1,500 more hotel rooms to accommodate the conventioners the larger center will attract, says convention center director Bruce Sommer.

Hotels in St. Louis County and Illinois would benefit from St. Louis' being able to attract bigger conventions, too. "There's a whole ripple effect moving all the way out, sometimes as far as St. Charles," observes Greg Vatterott, president of Charles F. Vatterott & Co., operator of three hotels.

The $80 million expansion effectively would double the convention center's size, pushing it south to Washington Avenue between Seventh and Ninth streets.

More importantly, the building would have two entrances and lobbies, meaning two separate conventions could be held simultaneously, says Mike Garvin, general manager of the Missouri Athletic Club and former general manager of the Radisson Hotel St. Louis.

"That's where the benefit would come from," he says.

Garvin explains that it takes two days or so to set up the booths and exhibits, and then another two days or so to tear them down after a convention concludes. That's a week's worth of "down time" for hoteliers; conventioners fill their rooms for just the three or four days of the convention itself.

The enlarged convention center could house one convention while another is being set up, thus eliminating some of the "down time" and increasing the demand for hotel rooms, Garvin says.

Plus, "there are a number of groups that have outgrown our exhibit space and anxiously await the expansion," says Terry Tumbrik, of the Convention and Visitors Commission.

Increased demand would boost downtown's occupancy rate from last year's 64 percent, industry officials say. Downtown has about 5,500 rooms.

"When demand increases, rates start creeping up," says Sheldon Holzman, managing partner of the St. Louis office of Laventhol & Horwath, an accounting firm.

Hotels in St. Louis have rates are, in part, self-imposed, says a senior official of Pannell Kerr Forester, another accounting firm that tracks the hospitality industry.

His December survey put the average hotel rate here at $55 a night and area-wide occupancy at 62 percent. The metro area has about 20,000 hotel rooms, Tumbrik says.

Hotel rates here are "soft," meaning lower than those in comparable-sized cities, because many of St. Louis' key hotels are locally owned. The owners worry they may drive potential business to competitors, so they don't boost rates.

For example, the Adam's Mark Hotel's average nightly rate of about $85 is "about 15 less than it should be," one

Metro East can host conventions

Not every group needs a meeting place the size of Cervantes Convention Center. So the City of Collinsville is building its own convention center to attract groups of 500 to 700.

"There was a very big need. Many local conventions were actually going to St. Louis," says Judith Chopping, executive director of Gateway Center.

Slated to open next January, Gateway Center will generate demand for the 1,100 rooms in the surrounding Eastport area, she says. If more rooms are needed, hotels in Edwardsville and Fairview Heights are just minutes away.

Collinsville hotel rooms cost about one-third less than those in St. Louis, she says.

"There's a lot going for this little community," Chopping continues.

"You don't have the costs and congestion of the big city" and St. Louis attractions are just nine miles away.

Meanwhile, Leroy Washington, south entrance. Industry insiders suggest raising the hotel, although Coleman says there are several other suitable sites within two blocks.

"You'll see many, many more (hotels) developed" to capitalize on the increased convention traffic, says developer Donn Lipton, who has taken over management of Union Market, where Drury Inns is building a 172-room hotel.

ton, manager of the development planned for the East St. Louis riverfront, says he probably will investigate the potential demand for a hotel, especially once the Cervantes Convention Center is expanded and the Metro Link light rail system begins operating.

"No question, we're going to have to consider that," he says.

Metro Link is projected to begin operating from Lambert-St. Louis International Airport to East St. Louis in early 1993.

The hotel "will do better with the expanded convention center than without it," Drury Inns' Chuck Drury says.

Meanwhile, in the summer of 1990 St. Louis will play host to two of the biggest conventions that can still fit in the Cervantes Convention Center, says Tumbrik.

Kiwanis International's 25,000 members will occupy 6,500 to 7,000 hotel rooms from June 24 to 27.

The Kiwanians will be followed July 9 to 14 by the 35,000 conventioners (in more than 9,200 rooms) attending Lions Club International meetings.

"That'll be a couple of busy weeks," Tumbrik says.

"Only the Fourth of July and VP Fair festivities will separate the two conventions."

"I don't ever recall those groups meeting back-to-back in one city," a fact that also hasn't been lost on St. Louis' competitors, who are envious, he adds. "It's a phenomenal coup."

Child protection bills introduced

Lawmakers continue to introduce new measures in the Illinois House, including three bills offering better protection to children, according to State Rep. Ron Stephens, R-Troy.

Stephens said House Bill 510 would make it child abduction for the assumed father of a child to intentionally conceal, detain or remove the child without the consent of the mother or lawful custodian if either the paternity of the child has not been legally established or if the paternity has been established but no orders relating to custody have been entered.

House Bill 520 would allow a parent, guardian or custodian to recover compensatory damages, punitive damages and reasonable attorney's fees in civil child abduction cases even if the defendant hasn't been convicted of or pleaded guilty to criminal child abduction.

House Bill 514 provides that any private organization, other than a school, which primarily provides recreational or other services to children may require its employees, volunteers and applicants to sign a statement, under penalty of perjury, stating whether they have ever been convicted of certain offenses involving children and whether they've ever been identified as child abusers.

Other bills just introduced include the following:

Partisan Appointments (HB 544) Provides whenever a vacancy occurs in any elective office of a unit of local government in which the officer is elected on a partisan basis and in which the vacancy is filled by appointment, the appointee will be a member of the same political party as the person he succeeds was at the time of his election.

Assessment Tests (HB 529) Provides that student assessment tests will be given in the tenth, instead of the eleventh, grade.

Residential Burglary (HB 537) Permits the court to sentence a defendant convicted of residential burglary to a period of probation of not less than two years, if the defendant has no prior criminal convictions and no authorized person was present in the residence at the time of the commission of the offense. In such case, one of the conditions of probation will be that the defendant serve a period of incarceration of not less than 180 consecutive days.

Special Plates (HB 560) Authorizes the Secretary of State to issue special plates to retired members of the United States Armed Forces.

Experimental Drugs (HB 566) Provides that any physician who prescribes an FDA approved drug for experimental purposes without the specific and informed consent of the patient is subject to discipline.

Financial Services (HB 541) Authorizes banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions to provide financial services to residents at bona fide nursing homes, senior citizens' retirement homes and long-term care facilities.

Hazardous Railway Accidents (HB 538) Directs the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) to prepare an annual report on railway accidents in Illinois involving hazardous materials. Directs the ICC to prepare a report by 1991 on remedial steps to reduce railway accidents involving hazardous materials.

Toilet Facilities (HB 513) Provides that certain public facilities will provide toilet facilities at a ratio of three for women to two for men.

Manufacturer Rebate Offers (HB 538) Requires a manufacturer to pay all costs associated with its offer of a rebate on its products.

Campaign Contribution (HB 521) Prohibits contributions to the principal campaign organization of a candidate for public office in an aggregate amount in excess of $1,000 for individuals, or in an aggregate amount in excess of $2,000 for any other entity within any 12 month period beginning on or after July 1, 1990.

Absentee Voting (HB 552) Provides special write-in absentee voter's blank ballots for military and overseas voters. Lengthens the period before the relevant election by which the State Board of Elections and county clerks must certify primary ballots, general election ballots and public questions.

Pollwatching (HB 553) Provides that pollwatchers may observe in-person absentee voting in the offices of municipal, township or road district clerks. Allows a physically incapacitated voter to mark his absentee ballot in secret with the assistance of another individual. Prohibits duplication of application forms for absentee ballots.

Waste Cleanup (HB 540) Provides that property owners will be liable on a pro-rated basis for cleanup charges of hazardous waste.

Aerosol Tax (HB 528) Imposes a tax of 10 percent of the retail selling price of any personal property sold in an aerosol can which contains any propellant containing chlorofluorocarbons. Proceeds of the tax would be deposited into the Environmental Protection Trust Fund.

Teacher Dismissal (HB 539) Permits notice of honorable dismissal to be given to teachers by personal delivery upon signed receipt thereof.

School Board Attendance (HB 536) Permits the members of a regional board of school trustees to remove a member of the board for failure to attend a majority of the regular meetings of the board during a calendar year or for any other willful failure to perform his official duties.

Soil test sets starting point for improvement

An excellent way to begin a garden or lawn improvement program is with a soil test.

Soil testing serves as a valuable guide for fertilization practices in vegetable gardens, home lawns and flower beds. The test indicates the amount of available nutrients in the soil and recommendations are given on how best to correct any deficiencies indicated. The acidity or alkalinity of the soil is also determined.

When a soil is found to have a low pH, the addition of limestone is recommended. This not only raises the pH to the proper level, but also adds calcium and magnesium to the soil. In addition, it helps improve soil structure, aids in breaking down thatch and offsets the acid reaction of fertilizers.

If, on the other hand, the soil is too alkaline, acidifying agents should be added to the soil. If the problem is slight, the use of acid peat and acid-forming fertilizers may be all that is needed. If the alkalinity is more severe, sulfur or iron sulfate may be needed.

Seldom do soils in this area require the addition of phosphate or potash, but occasionally this is needed to bring the soil to the proper nutrient level.

A soil test also measures the percentage of organic matter. Soils low in organic matter often have a problem with moisture.

Asphalt shingles add new dimension

There is something new under the sun; it has dimension and colors to please every taste.

It's the new look of asphalt shingles. The market today offers many more options than it did just a few years ago.

Added dimension is one of them, says the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association. The use of three-dimensional asphalt shingles, for example, can give a roof interesting texture while enhancing the overall architectural look of the home.

Many of these multilayered shingles create the appearance of wood, including weathered wood, but offer fire safety and easy care. Others create the look of slate or tile without the expense.

Color is another option, the association says. Especially popular these days are the earth-tone shades in numerous tones of red, brown and green. These natural colors work well on a roof that is designed to blend with the surrounding colors of nature.

Since multilayered asphalt shingles are designed to last a quarter century or more, the association suggests you choose a roof color you can live with for a long time.

More information can be found in "A Homeowner's Guide to Quality Roofing." Those who wish a copy of this booklet should send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to ARMA, Box 3248, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10163-3248.

Design of outdoor areas should reflect lifestyle

With professional assistance from your favorite garden center or nursery, you can enjoy the benefits of a custom-designed lawn, says the American Association of Nurserymen.

The right combination of grass, ground covers, large plantings, and hard surfaces can be created to suit your particular lifestyle and your area's water supply, the organization says.

Base your lawn-design guidelines on your family's needs and requirements. You will want to establish a grassy area for gatherings and games. Select an appropriate size for your needs. Avoid making it too large or too small so that you do not have to spend lots of time caring for unused areas.

Locate the lawn where family members spend the most time. With youngsters, this usually means the backyard. A plain shape for the lawn will reduce water use and mowing time. Add accents for interest and other benefits: A trellis can shade the sitting area; in one corner, an herb and vegetable garden will bring activity to the backyard, and a colorful stone path among the flowers will add a welcoming touch.

When the children have grown and moved away, there will be more time to entertain. At this point, a raised deck and several brightly colored container plants may be more effective. Invite guests into the home by placing borders of color-rich flowers and interesting trees along the walkway leading to the front door. Enjoy a semiprivate area of your backyard by using a fence and shrubs to screen it from the street.

Use your space efficiently.

Some ground covers show signs of fungus disease

Ground covers are important to today's homeowners. They may be grown in shaded areas where grass does not do well, serve as an excellent covering on slopes that are difficult to mow, and add extra color and texture to many parts of the garden.

Many people assume weeds pose the biggest challenge in growing ground covers, but actually, the herbicides available today have made this just a minor difficulty.

In some ground cover locations, the major threat comes from fungus. If not controlled early, large sections can become eyesores, consisting only of dead and barren areas.

Hardly ivy in some areas has suffered due to leaf burning caused by the dry summer of last year. Because these plants are in a weakened condition, they are more susceptible to fungus attack. In a number of cases, this is exactly what has happened, as indicated by dead brown spots on the leaves. Close examination of these diseased plants reveals stems that are barren and have extended black portions.

To control the problem, it is important to cut off as much of the dead portions as possible and to remove the old leaves with careful raking. Then spray all areas where ivy is growing with a fungicide containing Maneb or other containing basic copper sulfate, such as Bordeaux. Plants should be sprayed thoroughly as soon as possible; repeat once a week during early spring and after heavy rains. Avoid walking through ivy when wet because this will spread the disease.

With pachysandra, the scenario is similar. Winter scorch has weakened plants, opening the door to fungus disease.

Leaves of winter-scorched pachysandra plants have irregular blotches from light to dark over much of the leaf area. As this advances, the leaves shrivel up and sometimes fall off.

Your weekly Press-Record/Journal publishes articles and photographs about you and your family FREE of charge. We're proud too. Call us at 877-7700 and share your good notes with us.

Mr. Tinker

By Al Schneider

When fungus disease sets in, leaves show irregular brown and black blotches and stems turn black. Control should be undertaken immediately.

Areas that are heavily infected are best cut back. Be sure to collect and dispose of these cuttings.

Then spray with Captan or Maneb, repeating at weekly intervals until new growth is well-established.

Vinca (periwinkle) can be infected with a fungus that causes shoot tips to turn brown and die. The infection proceeds down the stem to the soil surface. The affected stem turns black. If this disease is not controlled, whole areas can die out very quickly.

To control, spray vinca thoroughly with Tercel or Benlate. Apply two or three times at monthly intervals during the spring season.

Once any of the above types of ground covers show active growth, whether they have been treated for problems or have been healthy, they may be fertilized with a light application of a balanced fertilizer in liquid or granular form. Water in immediately so that the foliage is not burned.

Do not overfeed. Overfeeding causes too much soft growth, which is more susceptible to disease problems.

Do you have problems with your garden or household plants? If so, direct your questions to: The Garden Spot, St. Louis News Service, 1215 Fern Ridge Parkway, Suite 108, St. Louis, Mo. 63111.

SIMPLY DI-VINE: The simple elegance of climbing vines and roses lends an enchanting touch to the garden. One can create a place for these beautiful plants by building structures like those shown here. The arbor shown at lower left is an attractive arch that might be placed over a backyard walkway or alongside the house. Instructions for building the arbor are available and cost $4.50. Requests should note "Arbor Pattern 613." Instructions for building the three trellis designs illustrated at top cost $3. Requests should note "Trellis Trio Pattern 673." Those interested should send a check to Steve Ellington, c/o St. Louis News Service, P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409-2383.

New coat of paint revives rusty fence

With new buds on flowers and trees, most home landscapes look fresh and clean. If an older galvanized chain-link fence that has rusted and corroded is detracting from the springtime beauty of your yard, corrective measures may be in order. If the fence is in good shape, you might want to consider a paint job rather than an expensive replacement. My time-tested tips should speed your work and enable the results to last through next winter.

As with any painting job, surface preparation is the key to success. On the posts and top rail, I start by wire-brushing the rust out until the surface is smooth. If the rust is too heavy, sand as much as possible and then apply a "rust reformer," such as Extend, which is manufactured by the Duro Co., and Rustoleum's Rust Reformer.

Rust reformers are applied as a light-colored liquid, but turn black when fully dry. They not only stop the existing rust, but also seal the surface from future damage. This may require two coats.

To restore the shine and luster of your fence, only specially formulated aluminum paint should be used. I begin painting the rails and posts with a 1-inch

Gardening

By Bob Dingwall

brush. By keeping my strokes even and in one direction, I can eliminate unsightly brush-stroke marks.

For the fence wire, I lay down a drop cloth or cardboard shield and use a 1/2-inch-thick nap roller. On the links, I prefer to paint at an angle, from the top to the bottom, working post to post.

It is best to paint the opposite side of the fence before the first side dries. While still damp, the paint on the two sides will mesh together.

Using these hints, your fence painting will go as smooth as Tom Sawyer's and soon you will be relaxing in a yard that sparkles with springtime beauty.

If you need more details about painting galvanized fences or any other spring fix-up project, call me at Central Hardware's Mr. Tinker Hotline, 948-3000. I'd be happy to help.

A GARDEN GAZEBO creates an inviting area for socializing and relaxing. Many do-it-yourselfers have the skills to build a gazebo themselves, cutting on costs and giving the project a personal touch.

Gazebo heightens joy of summertime living

A sturdy garden gazebo can enhance almost any backyard while adding to summertime fun and relaxation. It can be a base for barbecues on a balmy evening or provide soothing shade for a quiet afternoon of summer reading.

Building a gazebo is within the reach of many home do-it-yourselfers. Basic hand tools, readily available western lumber, and a measure of patience are the main requirements.

Plans for the gazebo illustrated here call for a 12-foot-wide deck that is supported by a series of 2-by-6-inch beams. A system of 10 concrete footings acts as the foundation.

Eight equally spaced posts provide support for the roof. The posts, made from preservative pressure-treated lumber, are fabricated from two 2-by-6s with a shorter 2-by-4 sandwiched in the center.

The posts are securely attached to post anchors, which are set in the poured concrete footings.

The roof itself calls for 2-by-6-inch tongue-and-groove decking, which is then covered with felt roofing paper and cedar shakes.

Embellishments include a knee-wall, upper and lower railings, and a final at the apex. Complete plans for the gazebo are available from the Western Wood Products Association and from many retailers. The plans include illustrated step-by-step instructions, tools and materials lists, treated lumber specifications, and all necessary dimensions.

To order the plans, send $1 to Western Wood Products Association, Dept. F-228C, Yon Building, 522 S.W. Fifth Ave., Portland, Ore. 97204-2122.

Preserve beauty of suede, leather

To retain its beauty and softness, suede and leather need proper care. Here are some tips:

Brush suede frequently with a soft brush.

Wipe smooth leather with a damp cloth.

If the garment gets wet, let it air-dry away from heat.

Store leather in a cool, ventilated area. It is subject to drying out if exposed to dry heat, and to mildew if exposed to a hot, humid environment.

Wear a scarf to protect the collar area from body oils.

If staining occurs, take the garment to a professional suede and leather cleaner as soon as possible. Do not try to remove the spots at home.

Have matching pieces cleaned at the same time.

Houseplants fight indoor air pollution

Plants are proving to be allies in the fight against indoor air pollution.

Among the toxic substances found to be polluting the air of some homes are carbon monoxide and nitrogen dioxide.

Houseplants, particularly spider plants, can be excellent air cleaners—so put some greenery in your home and breathe more easily, suggests "National Wildlife" magazine.

KEZK-FM102 and Community Club Awards

Touching Hearts, Enriching Lives

What is KEZK-FM's Community Club Awards? It is "business and volunteers working together for a better St. Louis."

Community Club Awards (or "CCA") is an internationally recognized fundraising opportunity for non-profit organizations and charities, sponsored in the St. Louis Metro-East area by KEZK-FM Radio and these 46 prominent firms. KEZK-FM's CCA is part of a network of CCA programs in hundreds of cities throughout the United States, Canada and Australia.

Community Club Awards has enabled KEZK-FM and its Corporate Sponsors to benefit over 500 charities, service, civic, church and school organizations over the past seven years. Financial awards to these groups have funded many worthy causes such as medical research, providing more dignified jobs for the disabled, sheltering the homeless, improving educational facilities for the children and many more.

This year KEZK-FM and these Corporate Sponsors will present over $42,000 in cash awards to the non-profit organizations and charities which participate in Community Club Awards.

The CCA concept is simple: the participating non-profit organizations' members earn money for their particular causes by simply saving proofs-of-purchase from these CCA Corporate Sponsors. There is nothing to sell or endorse. Although the amount of money an organization earns is proportionate to the amount of proofs-of-purchase it redeems to KEZK-FM, EVERY organization which participates in CCA is guaranteed to earn a portion of the $42,000-plus fund.

Community Club Awards is open to all non-profit organizations (civic, service, church, school, fraternal, etc.) in the St. Louis Metro-East area whose goal it is to earn funds for worthwhile community enhancement purposes. (Participation in CCA is not available to individuals.)

KEZK-FM salutes the 1989 Community Club Awards Non-Profit Organizations and Corporate Sponsors. These men and women are dedicated to improving the quality of life in our community, and KEZK-FM is proud to be a part of their efforts toward fostering "a better St. Louis."

ONCE A DELICACY served only in springtime, lamb still is looked on as an annual specialty now in its prime.

Leaner lamb cuts add variety as spring traditions hold court

Once a major pitfall for those cutting fat from their diets, lamb today is a much leaner meat.

While hardly a low-fat food, carefully selected lean cuts of lamb, trimmed and served in modest portions, can add occasional variety to menus without throwing low-fat diet goals out the window.

With consumer preference moving toward lighter foods, many lamb producers in the United States now raise lambs nearly twice the size of those raised in other countries with much more lean meat in relation to fat.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's lamb grading program has changed in recent years to reflect this leaner meat production. About 90 percent of lamb sold in supermarkets carries the "choice" grade rather than the fatter "prime" grade.

Since lamb's fat is mostly on the outside of pieces and in layers between muscles, careful trimming is important to limiting fat in lamb dishes.

Leg of lamb, both shank and sirloin, is the best source of lean meat. Loin chops are also lower in fat than the rack (ribs), rib chops, shoulder or shoulder cuts.

As with beef, cuts with lower fat content also tend to be less expensive than fatter cuts.

In addition to being leaner, however, today's lamb cuts also tend to be larger than in the past, so take care to keep individual portions to about three ounces of cooked meat, or serve lamb in steaks or casseroles.

where less meat and more vegetables or pasta is the rule.

Cooking methods that allow fat to drip off or otherwise be removed before serving are also important in reducing fat in lamb dishes.

As with any lean meat, cooking techniques that enhance flavor, moistness and tenderness are best for lean lamb.

Curried cubed lamb

- 1/2 lb. lamb, from loin, boned and with fat removed, cut in small cubes (See Note)
- 1/2 cup raisins
- 1 1/2 cups chicken broth or low-sodium chicken bouillon
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/2 cup finely chopped celery
- 1/2 cup peeled, diced apple
- 1/2 cup finely diced banana
- 1 tsp. minced garlic
- 2 to 3 tbsp. curry powder
- 1/2 cup peeled tomatoes, preferably Italian tomatoes
- 1 bay leaf

Note: This recipe uses about 3/4 pound lamb. This will usually require about a 2 1/2-pound loin of lamb, with bone removed and fat trimmed.

Place raisins in bowl. Cover with warm water. Soak about 30 minutes.

Heat 1/4 cup chicken broth in saucepan. Add onion. Cook, while stirring, until onion is wilted. Add celery, apple, banana, garlic and curry powder. Cook briefly.

Add tomatoes, remaining chicken stock and bay leaf. Remove from heat. Pour mixture in blender or food processor. Blend until smooth to yield about 2 cups sauce.

Return sauce to pan. Cook over low heat. Drain raisins. Add to sauce.

Place lamb cubes in skillet. Cook over high heat, stirring constantly, to separate pieces and cook evenly. Cook only 1 to 2 minutes. Add meat to simmering sauce. Remove from heat. Serve immediately over rice or noodles.

Makes 4 servings, 230 calories and about 9 gm. fat each.

Melodic rice dishes deserve standing ovation for flavor

Classic foods are never out of style. Like music, they begin a meal on key and carry it through to a pleasant finale.

Fruited Shrimp and Rice borrows a phrase from many cultures. A quick saute cooks shrimp and stir-fries celery, onion and green pepper. A sweet addition of fresh grapes and the tang of soy sauce and lemon juice offsets the savoriness to form a mellow but crisp flavor that flows atop the even notes of warm rice.

Rice is one food packaged to fit any size family, small or large. Simply follow directions for show-stopping performances every time.

- 1 small onion, sliced
- 1 tbsp. butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup fresh seedless grapes
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. soy sauce
- 1/2 tsp. lemon juice
- 1 1/2 cups hot cooked rice

Cook shrimp, celery, green pepper and onion in butter in large skillet over medium-high heat until shrimp turns pink and vegetables are tender-crisp.

Stir in grapes, salt, pepper, soy sauce and lemon juice. Cook until thoroughly heated.

Serve over hot rice.

Makes 3 servings.

Quick 'n easy ratatouille rice

- 2 1/2 cups water
- 1 cup uncooked rice
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup sliced yellow squash
- 1/2 cup sliced zucchini

- 1/2 cup coarsely chopped red or green pepper
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 1 tsp. basil
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 small tomato, diced
- 2 tsp. chopped parsley

Prepare rice according to package directions. Reserve 1 cup. Cover and refrigerate remaining rice.

Cook onion in 8-inch non-stick skillet, stirring constantly, 1 minute. Stir in yellow squash, zucchini, pepper, garlic, basil and salt. Cover. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until vegetables are tender, about 10 minutes.

Stir in tomato and reserved rice. Cook, covered, 10 minutes longer, stirring several times.

Sprinkle with parsley.

Makes 2 servings; 118 calories, 3 gm. protein, less than 1 gm. fat, 26 gm. carbohydrate, no cholesterol, 535 mg. sodium each.

GROUND MEAT RECIPES can be changed without much flavor change from beef to turkey, as is proved by Tidy Toms.

Talk turkey to alter tedium of beef

People who recently have found themselves talking turkey more often when making menu decisions have joined a growing number of consumers who have found that this versatile meat is not just for Thanksgiving.

The availability of turkey in a variety of cuts has made it easier to include in daily menu planning. Turkey breast, legs and cutlets offer many recipe ideas, and ground turkey now is usually available alongside the ground beef.

However, be aware that ground turkey is still not a low-fat food, and sometimes may even contain more fat than some types of ground beef. Ground turkey usually contains about 7 percent to 15 percent fat by weight. Fresh turkey usually tends to be lower in fat than frozen, and ground turkey made from white meat is lower in fat than that ground from dark meat.

Substituting ground turkey for regular ground beef, which is 25 to 30 percent fat by weight, will help reduce dietary fat. Ground chicken or lean ground beef is usually about 20 percent fat by weight. But ground round or extra lean ground beef is normally only 10 to 15 percent fat. Learn to read labels, or ask a butcher if fat content is not labeled.

It adds up to a point where ground turkey is lower in fat than many types of ground beef, but it still may be getting from 30 to 50 percent of its calories from dietary fat. It is still important to limit portions and not add excessive fat in recipes.

Ground turkey will add an interesting, new flavor to simple favorites like burgers. When it is seasoned and mixed in recipes like meatloaf, chili, sausage, tacos or spaghetti sauce, a family is unlikely to notice a difference.

The following recipe is a tasty turkey version of that old ground beef favorite, Sloppy Joes. It is simple to make, but be sure to drain off fat from the pan to keep dietary fat content even lower. For sandwiches, serve it on whole wheat bread, or make it a simple main dish served over rice or noodles.

Tidy toms

- 2 lb. ground turkey
- 1 large onion, diced
- 1 (10-oz.) can tomato soup
- 1 (10-oz.) can chicken gumbo soup

- 1 to 2 tsp. chili powder
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- 12 whole wheat buns

In frying pan, brown ground turkey and onion. Drain off any fat from pan. Add undiluted tomato and chicken soups, chili and pepper to meat mixture. Simmer over low heat 45 to 60 minutes to allow flavors to blend.

Spoon over buns to serve.

Yields 12 sandwiches, each with no more than 10 gm. fat, depending on fat content of ground turkey, and about 264 calories.

Rapid weight loss programs require caution, medical input

By Jacqueline Lanfker
Registered dietitian
American Heart Association

Anyone fighting the battle of the bulge is not alone. At least 10 to 12 percent of American men and women are classified as overweight or obese. Many have tried and failed to successfully lose the extra fat (adipose tissue) and keep it off.

Numerous studies have shown that overweight people are at increased risk for several diseases, including diabetes, coronary disease and cancer. Life insurance companies long have recognized the importance of weight and height relationship when evaluating the risk factors of applicants.

Recent studies indicate that the pattern of fat tissue may be more important than total body weight. In other words, a person with fat located predominately in the abdominal region may be at a greater risk for disease than a person with extra fat in the gluteal and thigh regions.

Just as no two persons or bodies are alike, weight loss programs all vary in strategy and method. What works for one person may not work for another. For this reason, recent publicity given to a television personality who was able to lose 60 pounds in four months on a very low-calorie liquid diet should be viewed in proper perspective and approached cautiously.

This particular approach to weight reduction is best utilized in a selective type of individual who has an excessive amount of weight to lose, realizes the importance of frequent medical supervision, has the financial means to pay for this expensive program and is motivated to complete the program once started.

The success of low-calorie liquid diets is not universal. One recently published study showed that more than half the 500 patients starting the program dropped out before reaching their weight goal. Of those who reached their weight goal, fewer than half maintained the weight loss 18 months after completing the program. Considering the fact that the majority of these individuals were morbidly obese and unable to lose weight with conventional methods, this is not a bad record.

Very low-calorie liquid diet programs have demonstrated weight reduction of two to five pounds per week. This type of reduction is dangerous if undertaken casually as a do-it-yourself project without medical supervision, even though the liquid supplements and overall programs now available are of better quality than the ones resulting in a number of deaths a few years ago.

An effective program of permanent weight loss maintenance requires up to 18 months devoted to re-educating clients in improving eating patterns and producing a change in lifestyle. This requires a lifetime reduction of calorie intake of foods and a regular program of physical activities.

Start with a complete physical examination and input from the physician. In many instances he or she may give a referral to a dietitian. Often a well balanced, low-fat, high-fiber diet will result in adequate weight loss in an effortless manner. Be cautious of the many self-proclaimed, heavily advertised clinics until their ethical and professional qualifications can be checked.

The following recipe is delicious, nutritious and low in calories. Serve it with whole grain bread and fresh fruit slices.

Zucchini cheese casserole

- 3 medium zucchini, sliced
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 2 fresh tomatoes, sliced
- 1 lb. low-fat cottage cheese
- 1 tsp. basil
- ½ tsp. oregano
- ½ cup parmesan cheese

Saute zucchini and onion in oil. Whip cottage cheese with basil and oregano in blender.

Place alternating layers of zucchini, cottage cheese and tomato in 1½-quart casserole. Top with parmesan. Bake at 350°, uncovered, 25 to 30 minutes.

Yields 6 servings; about 130 calories, 10 gm. fat, 393 mg. sodium and 11 mg. cholesterol, each.

Homemade soup takes chill from changeable spring days

One of the best ways to fight the raw, cold days of early spring is with a steaming bowl of homemade vegetable soup. A thick, hearty soup not only warms the body, but provides nutritional goodness that is hard to beat.

Fresh vegetable soups are a delicious way to include more healthy vegetables in a family's diet, a practice strongly recommended by the American Institute for Cancer Research. Research has shown that many vegetables provide vitamins, fiber and other nutrients which may be important in reducing cancer risk.

But don't make the mistake of counting the healthful benefits of vegetables by making them part of a high-fat soup. Avoiding cream-based soup recipes that are high in fat is easy to do, because creamy-textured vegetable soups can be prepared easily by blending potatoes as thickening and adding skim milk or low-fat yogurt for enrichment.

Some delicious and healthful possibilities for such cream-type soups include broccoli, carrot, cauliflower, asparagus, zucchini, tomato, spinach, watercress, cucumber, red pepper, pumpkin, turnip, rutabaga or leaf lettuce. Onions or leeks add zip to the flavor.

Once the vegetables are softened by simmering in just enough water to cover them, puree the soup in a food mill, food processor or blender. Then return it to the pan and add skim milk or yogurt before serving.

Here is a delicious, hearty, non-cream soup with a unique herb flavor from pesto topping. Check a larger supermarket or specialty grocer if a local one does not stock fresh basil.

Minestrone with pesto

- 1 cup (1/2 lb) dry small red beans
- 1 qt. water
- 1 (14 oz) can whole tomatoes and juice
- 1 cup (1 medium to large) onion, chopped
- 2 medium carrots, shredded to 1/2 cup
- 1/2 cup finely chopped celery
- 1 garlic clove, crushed
- 1 tsp. pepper

- 1 cup shredded cabbage
- 1/2 cup water, 1/2 cup tomato paste
- 1/2 cup uncooked macaroni
- Pesto, if desired

Combine beans and one quart water in large pan or Dutch oven. Boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Cover. Let stand 1 hour.

Stir in onion, carrots, celery, garlic and pepper. Heat, stirring occasionally, until boiling. Reduce heat. Simmer gently, covered, until beans are tender, about 2 hours.

Add tomatoes with their juice. Stir to break up tomatoes. Add cabbage, 1/2 cup water, tomato paste and macaroni. Simmer ingredients gently, covered, 20 minutes or until macaroni is tender, but firm.

Spoon mixture into bowls. Top each with spoonful of Pesto.

Pesto: Place 1/2 cup fresh basil leaves, 1/2 cup fresh or frozen (thawed) spinach leaves, 2 tablespoons grated romano cheese, 2 tablespoons olive oil and 1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley in blender jar. Blend until mixture forms smooth paste.

Recipes

Tangy fruit and nut muesli

- 1 1/2 cups water
- 1/2 cups oats, uncooked
- 3 cups oranges or tangerines, peeled, seeded, chopped
- 1/2 cup raisins or chopped dates
- 1/2 cup coarsely chopped nuts
- 1 tsp. cinnamon

Combine water, oats, oranges, dates, nuts and cinnamon. Mix well. Cover. Refrigerate overnight.

Serve cold or hot with milk or yogurt, if desired. For thicker muesli, drain excess liquid before serving or heating in microwave.

Store in refrigerator up to 1 week.

Makes 6 servings, 200 calories per 1/2-cup serving.

Note: To heat one serving, place 1/2 cup muesli in microwave-safe bowl. Microwave at high about 1 1/2 minutes. Stir.

Microwave skillet cornbread

- 2 slices bacon, cut in 1/2 inch pieces
- 4 tsp. butter
- 1 cup flour
- 1 cup cornmeal
- 2 tsp. sugar
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- Dash salt
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/2 cup buttermilk

Cook bacon in 9-inch microwave-safe skillet or dish until crisp. Pour off almost all fat. Add butter. Heat until just melted.

In large bowl, mix flour, cornmeal, sugar, baking powder, salt, egg, buttermilk and corn. Add skillet contents, stirring until batter is well combined. Pour batter into skillet. Smooth top.

Cook in microwave oven on medium power 8 minutes. Finish cooking on high 1 to 4 minutes, until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Rotate skillet a quarter turn once or twice during cooking.

Let stand 5 to 10 minutes, then serve warm from skillet.

Diet, exercise mix to make winning weight loss combo

By Janice Denham
Food editor

Dieting is an American attribute. In a country where some people consider their evening exercise getting up to change television channels instead of using remote control, it is easy to find people who are counting calories to become slender or maintain slimmness.

When Oprah Winfrey proudly displayed her newly svelte silhouette on national television, discussions centered on the safety of diet plans. The new liquid diet plan, sometimes called VLC for very-low-calorie fasting, that helped her lose weight is not the tonic of past medicine men, but once again it is not a magic potion for all those who want to lose weight fast.

Debra Waites, registered dietitian with the St. Louis Dietetic Association, says, "Most diets fail because they expect you to become different than what you are. Never do a diet that relies solely on a food group or eliminates food groups. Basically you want something that is well balanced, that doesn't create a lot of changes in you."

She says the end change that will need to be accomplished is a commitment to exercise and watching what foods are eaten. Many people blame their extra weight on biological makeup, but this may be unfair to their genes.

As some people seem to eat all the food they want and not gain weight while others look at a picture of cookies in a magazine and gain pounds, Waites says less than 3 percent of those who are overweight really have a metabolic problem. However, it is true that the other 97 percent, everybody's metabolism is different.

"The one thing you can do to change your metabolism is exercise. You can actually raise it for about 48 hours once you are in condition, so that if you exercise a lot, you are going to be using more calories even if you sit down and watch television," she says.

For many people, exercise equipment is readily available to make shaping up easier, she says. Some current dieting philosophy states that exercise is the key indicator of the success of a diet.

"You don't need to be a marathon runner to get these benefits. All it takes is half an hour three times a week. An hour and a half all week long is not a big investment of time if you are serious about your health."

Winfrey used one of the popular liquid diets, Opti-Fast, which includes fasting to eliminate decision-making while excessive weight is lost and new eating patterns can be studied.

Reliable programs like this are connected with a hospital or clinic. The dieter is seen by a doctor weekly and blood is tested every two weeks to make sure the body is staying healthy based on the prescribed liquid nutrition being consumed. An electrocardiogram should be given at various stages. Follow-up procedures vary according to the program.

Waites says these programs can be practiced for a person who is at least 50 pounds overweight, provided they are used as intended with the understanding that the overall process must result in a changed style of eating, the same as the focus of other respected programs.

Beth Butler, clinical coordinator of Wellness Education Systems, another health-care company that uses its own liquid diet as part of weight management treatment, says, "A program like this is a short-term tool. It puts decisions on the back burner. We try to give them calorie-learning knowledge that doesn't say anything is good or bad, but enough information that may be adequate to work for them once they get to the point of maintaining their weight."

Waites says that the 400 registered dietitians locally can provide people with accurate and reliable nutrition information that could lead to weight loss for those who need it. The St. Louis Dietetic Association may be contacted at (314) 727-3009.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

U.S. Gov't Approves Patent Claims for New Diet Pill
BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and calorie reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors' claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry.

You Can "Eat Normally" Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the first day until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising."

Flushes Fat Out of Body The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Automatically" Lose Fat According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shellen, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fat-bonding process is a 'lazy way' to lose weight because the pills alone 'automatically' reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug."

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public: If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-diet" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calories-reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. WX71, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) PREPARE THIS NEW version of traditional Italian polenta on a range top or in a microwave oven, then chill in a mold or individual custard cups.

Cornmeal dish gives sweet cake new look

Cornmeal will have its day in the sun — even as dessert.

The essential ingredient for long-time favorite cornbread and newly popular polenta, cornmeal is prized by creative cooks for the "something special" it adds to desserts as well.

Inspired by a recent resurgence of interest in cornmeal, here are two show-stopping dessert recipes which rely on cornmeal for their special texture and flavor. Designed with time-pressed party planners in mind, both recipes boast simple, streamlined preparation for a contemporary-classic aura.

Orange-Date Dessert Polenta combines orange juice, dates, cornmeal and orange liqueur with easy range top or microwave oven preparation in an elegant variation of polenta, Italy's all-time favorite. Prepared with eggs or milk, this light yet richly flavored dessert has a delectable custard-like texture. Chocolate lovers will find a new favorite in Chocolate-Almond Cornmeal Pound Cake. Rich, fudgy and lusciously moist, this almond-crusted cake is an ideal addition to a special dinner.

Orange-date dessert polenta

- 1 1/2 cups orange juice
- 1/2 cups water
- 1 cup cornmeal
- 3 tbsp. sugar
- 1/2 tsp. salt, if desired
- 1/2 cup chopped pitted dates
- 2 tbsp. orange liqueur
- 1 tsp. margarine or butter

Grease 1-quart casserole.

In large saucepan, combine orange juice, water, cornmeal, sugar and salt. Bring to boil. Reduce heat. Simmer 5 to 6 minutes or until mixture is thick, stirring occasionally.

Remove from heat. Stir in dates, liqueur and margarine.

Pour into prepared casserole.

Refrigerate until firm, about 45 minutes.

Unmold. Serve with whipped cream, orange slices and dates, if desired.

Microwave directions: Grease quart casserole or mold.

Combine orange juice, water, cornmeal, sugar and salt in quart microwave-safe casserole. Cover. Microwave at high 5 minutes.

Stir vigorously with wire whisk. Cover. Microwave at high 6 to 8 minutes or until mixture is thickened. Stir in dates, liqueur and margarine.

Pour into prepared casserole.

Refrigerate until firm, about 45 minutes.

Unmold. Serve with whipped cream, orange slices and dates, if desired.

Chocolate almond pound cake

- 1/2 cup finely chopped almonds
- 1/2 cups sugar
- 1/2 cups margarine or butter
- 4 eggs
- 4 oz. unsweetened chocolate, melted
- 1 to 2 tsp. almond extract
- 2 cups flour
- 1 cup cornmeal
- 1/2 tsp. salt, if desired
- 1/2 tsp. baking powder
- 1 cup milk

Generously grease 12-cup fluted tube pan. Coat sides with almonds.

In large mixer bowl, beat sugar and margarine until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Stir in chocolate and almond extract.

Add combined flour, cornmeal, salt and baking powder alternately with milk, mixing at low speed of electric mixer until well blended.

Spoon batter into prepared pan. Bake 50 to 60 minutes at 350° or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean.

Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pan. Cool completely on wire rack.

Makes 16 servings; 381 calories, 42 gm. carbohydrate, 6 gm. protein, 32 gm. fat, 205 mg. sodium, 70 mg. cholesterol and 1 gm. dietary fiber each.

Chocolate chip coffecake

- 1/2 cup warm water (105° to 115°)
- 2 eggs, beaten, at room temperature
- 3 cups flour
- 1/2 cup semisweet chocolate chips
- Coffecake Topping

Scauld milk. Stir in butter, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm.

Sprinkle yeast in warm water in large, warm bowl. Stir until dissolved. Add lukewarm milk mixture, eggs and 2 cups flour. Beat at medium speed of electric mixer until smooth, about 15 to 20 seconds.

Stir in remaining 1 cup flour and chocolate chips until well blended, about 1 minute.

Turn into well-greased 10-inch tube pan with removable bottom or 9-inch springform pan. Cover. Let rise in warm, draft-free place until doubled in size, about 45 to 60 minutes.

Bake at 400° for 25 minutes. Remove from oven. Sprinkle with Coffecake Topping. Return to oven. Bake additional 15 minutes or until done.

Cool in pan 10 minutes. Remove from pan. Cook upright on wire rack.

Food processor instructions: With metal blade in place, combine flour, butter (cut up), sugar and salt in bowl. Process 5 to 10 seconds to combine.

- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/2 cup semisweet chocolate chips
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans

Cut butter into flour. Stir in sugar, cinnamon, chocolate chips and nuts.

Food processor instructions: With metal blade in place, process flour, pecans, chocolate morsels, sugar, butter and cinnamon about 5 seconds until crumbly.

Meatless meals find favor flavored with dairy richness

In Americans' endless search for meat variety and lighter eating, many are turning to occasional meatless meals. There are, in fact, several contemporary restaurants of renown which specialize in meatless fare.

One of the best known of these is Greens, a San Francisco eatery that has garnered national attention from the award-winning "Greens Cookbook" by Deborah Madison (Bantam Books, 1987). Greens is hardly a typical bean sprouts and tofu vegetarian spot, but instead serves satisfying, creative entrees, many of which have a deeply flavorful allure.

Dairy products team much of the satisfying, rich taste of the specialties at Greens to make Asparagus Crepes with Fontina Cheese; Basil Fettuccine with Green Beans, Walnuts and Creme Fraiche; and Maple Mousse. The best of these combine vegetables and greens of the season, ethnic spices and grains for innovative entrees. Likewise, fresh fruits find their complements in natural yogurts and luxurious dessert creams.

The meatless recipes that follow are reminiscent of Greens' approach to cooking and baking. Each recipe provides a full one-third of the nutritionally complete protein and one-third of the calcium needed in a day, based on a 2,000-calorie diet.

Melted butter

For bread, dissolve yeast in water. Let stand about 10 minutes or until yeast starts to bubble.

Combine flours, cornmeal and salt. Stir in dissolved yeast and butter until soft dough is formed.

Add 1 to 2 tablespoons more water, if necessary. Stir in parsley and rosemary.

Turn out on lightly floured surface. Knead until smooth and shiny, about 5 minutes. Place in well-buttered bowl. Turn over butter top. Let rise in warm place free from drafts covered with damp warm towel until double in bulk, 1 to 1 1/2 hours.

For filling, melt butter in large skillet. Sauté onions until very tender, about 5 minutes. Stir in peppers, mushrooms and garlic. Sauté until tender, 6 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat. Drain off any excess liquid. Stir in flour. Stir in parsley, Italian seasoning, salt and pepper. Set aside.

Combine ricotta cheese and eggs in large mixing bowl. Stir vegetables and provolone and mozzarella cheeses into cheese-egg mixture. Set aside.

Preheat oven to 400°. Punch down dough. Divide in two equal pieces slightly bigger than the other. Roll larger piece in lightly floured surface to 13-inch diameter circle. Carefully fit in 11-inch quiche pan buttered and sprinkled with cornmeal. Let 1 inch of dough hang over edges. Pour filling into lined pan.

Roll second piece of dough to form 11-inch diameter circle.

Brush edges of bottom crust with melted butter. Fold bottom crust over top. Flute edges to seal.

Brush top with melted butter. Cut four slits in top for steam to escape.

Bake 50 to 60 minutes at 400°. Let stand 15 minutes before serving.

Makes 8 servings; 513 calories, 23 gm. protein, 25 gm. fat, 51 gm. carbohydrate each.

Regency made good move acquiring Sun

By Jeannie Block

Although Regency Cruises has been on the cruise ship scene for only a little more than three years, it has been making a big splash in the industry.

The newly acquired Regent Sun joined its two popular sisters, Regent Sea and Regent Star in the Caribbean, in December 1989, attracting a new round of Regency loyalists.

This latest acquisition, formerly Royal Cruise Line's flagship, the Royal Odyssey, originally was built for Israel in 1964 as the Shalom and later sailed as the German Hanseatic and Home Line's Doric. At 25,000 gross register tons and a capacity of more than 800 passengers, it is similar in size to the two other Regent ships.

Capt. Angelos Benetatos and hotel manager Steve Pittman spent more than a month on the ship readying it to become Regency's flagship. But former Royal Odyssey passengers will immediately recognize the ship because the only major work was the addition of eight new cabins on Riviera Deck. Other changes were cosmetic — replacement of some carpeting, drapes, and other items, moving the casino into a card room on Rendezvous Deck and turning a library on Promenade Deck into a computer room.

For sun worshippers, there are four big decks to lay out on, as well as many umbrellas that provide shade from a blazing Caribbean sun.

As for the indoor set, it is hard to catch up with the activities — the traditional bingo and horse races, first-run movies, bridge instruction, quiz sessions, aerobics, vegetable carving — you name it. These mainly are directed by the social staff, which also provides evening entertainment.

The computer room, a Regency specialty on each ship, comes with a new instructor each week. Robert G. Crawford, a business systems consultant and adjunct professor at Webster University's graduate program, conducted several classes during our cruise.

Among Regent Sun's sports features is an indoor pool in a large lower-deck fitness center containing new equipment and supervised by an instructor who offers personalized body analysis and training programs. Anyone for tennis? There is deck tennis court on the top deck.

For lunch there are several options other than the dining room: an extensive buffet on the Lido, an outdoor barbecue on Riviera Deck and a health foods bar in the enclosed part of Promenade Deck. There's also room service. Then there's the late night buffet.

The extended evening spreads — New York deli, Chilean, Mexican, among others — compare favorably with some ships' gala buffets, and this ship's gala is just that: a wide eye-popping assortment of magnificently presented foods and decorative pieces.

Beginning in May, the Regent Sun will cruise week-long schedules between Vancouver, Canada and Anchorage, Alaska. In September the ship will be repositioned to a new winter base in San Juan, Puerto Rico, for seven-day sailings, starting in mid-October, to eastern Caribbean Islands.

Panama Canal a wonder when viewed from ship

By Jeannie Block

The 20th century's unparalleled engineering achievement — the Panama Canal — is celebrating its diamond anniversary in 1989.

It was 1914 when the Panama Canal opened, after more than 10 years of construction, during which time armies of workers often faced nearly insurmountable obstacles and impossible conditions.

This 50-mile-long, nearly north-south, two-lane waterway connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, cuts across the Isthmus of Panama, saving ships moving from ocean to ocean thousands of costly miles and days skirting South America's Cape Horn.

Today, an average of 33 ships make the daily transit, which takes around nine hours, not including time spent in holding areas. The 12,234 ships passing through last year paid the Panama Canal Commission $340 million in fees, based on a set formula dealing with weight.

The highest charge ever — $106,782.33 — was incurred last year by the cruise ship Queen Elizabeth 2; the lowest was the 36 cents explorer Richard Halliburton was charged in 1928 for his 10-day end-to-end swim.

The belief that many people harbor a natural curiosity about the canal prompted Regency Cruises to pioneer a partial transit as part of a western Caribbean itinerary. That interest was highly evident as Regent Sun approached the first set of locks. Every inch of space forward was crammed with people excitedly photographing our entrance into the Gatun Locks. A canal commission commentator on the bridge provided background.

Essentially, these locks are water elevators that raise the ship to the high elevations of land through which the canal was cut. A ship is raised or lowered 85 feet in a continuous flight of three steps at Gatun Locks.

Arbor Day observance April 14 in Forest Park's Jewel Box

Arbor Day will be celebrated by the St. Louis Forestry Division between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Friday, April 14, with a series of events at the Jewel Box in Forest Park.

A tree planting ceremony and a "Free Tree Give Away Spectacular" will be at 11 a.m. A tree will be dedicated in Forest Park in honor of Arbor Day and in celebration of the 1989 Tree City USA Award.

The Tree City award has been given to St. Louis by the National Arbor Day Foundation for six years in honor of the city's tree planting programs.

"This past fall we planted over 4,000 trees along city streets and in city parks," said Gary Bass, city commissioner of forestry. "The Tree City USA Award is an honor for St. Louis and a tribute to all the St. Louis residents that have supported us and participated in our tree planting programs."

Elementary school children from St. Louis public schools will help plant the ceremonial tree at 11 a.m. Elementary classes will also tour the Jewel Box area on "tree walks" and learn more about trees and Arbor Day with a special Arbor Day presentation by the Forestry Division.

At 11 a.m., five free trees approximately 6 to 8 feet in height will be given away. Tickets will be drawn to select the five winners. Tickets may be obtained from the Forestry Division until April 14 and will be available from 10 to 11 a.m. at the Arbor Day Celebration on April 14. Ticket holders must be present at the drawing to win.

Tree walks around the Jewel Box area will be conducted at 10 a.m. and from noon until 2 p.m. Tree care clinics will be held between noon and 2 p.m. Information on trees and Arbor Day will also be available and a video entitled Trees and You will be shown continuously.

Hero Kline still just 'nice boy' to parents

By Terry Edelman
Staff affiliate

Kevin Kline may be among Hollywood's newest heroes, but to his mother and father, Clayton residents Robert and Peggy Kline, he's always had star quality.

"He's a sensitive, fine young man," said Peggy Kline. "He works hard at his craft."

Kevin Kline's craft is acting, and he does it very well.

Most recently, he was honored with an Academy Award as Best Supporting Actor for his role in the film comedy "A Fish Called Wanda."

The Oscar follows two Tony awards for Broadway performances in "On the Twentieth Century" and "The Pirates of Penzance."

"Kevin was always funny," Robert Kline said.

But most of all, Kevin Kline has always been "a nice boy," his father said.

"It was typical of him to mention all his competitors when he accepted his Academy Award," Robert Kline said. "He always worried about the people who didn't win."

But it seems Peggy Kline can take some credit for her son's eloquent acceptance speech.

The elder Klines had been told by their son that he was seriously thinking about skipping the Oscar festivities. It was his mother who insisted that he go.

"I said he had to go or I'd never speak to him again," Peggy Kline said. "I just knew he was going to win."

Kevin Kline didn't exhibit acting ability until his senior year at St. Louis Priory High School in Creve Coeur, his parents said.

"He told us he was in the senior play," Robert Kline said. "His mother and I came expecting him to be one of the super-numeraries (extras). He was the star — and he was very good. His coach said it seemed like Kevin lived on the stage."

Priory public relations director Julie Constantino recalls comments by Kevin's English teacher, the Rev. Austin Rennie, on Kline's debut.

"He absolutely sparkled when the lights were turned on the stage," Rennie wrote in an article about Kline.

Today, Kevin's profession is adding some excitement to his parents' lives.

"We've met a lot of celebrities," Robert Kline said.

Kevin Kline recently married actress Phoebe Cates. The wedding, which was held in a New York City mansion, was a veritable Hollywood who's who.

Typical of mothers everywhere, Peggy Kline won't play favorites.

"Of course, I'm proud of Kevin, but I'm proud of all my children," she said. "I'm very fortunate to have four children who're doing what they want to do."

Alexander, 31, is in legal research and lives in Washington, D.C.; Christopher, 33, is a certified public accountant with the accounting firm of Ernst & Whinney in St. Louis; and Katherine (Kline) May, 42, is a filmmaker and writer who lives in Berkeley, Calif.

World's largest USO busy place, every day

ST. LOUIS — You won't find the Andrew Sisters there, or Rosie the Riveter all dolled up for a dance with a G.I.

But just beyond baggage carousel No. 1 at Lambert-St. Louis International Airport, the USO is offering a home away from home for hundreds of service men and women every day.

The USO (United Service Organizations) is proud of its World War II-era heritage, its canteen dances and road shows aimed at boosting the morale of America's men in uniform. But the men and women of today's USO are quick to point out that times — have changed.

"We still have coffee and doughnuts, but we're much less glamorous than that," said Lynn Morrissey, executive director of the James S. McDonnell USO at the St. Louis airport. "Some of my friends who know I'm a musician and know I work at the USO expect to come in and see me dancing on the tables."

What visitors will find, however, is a nursery for infants, a playroom for toddlers, a room full of recliners for sleeping and a snack bar that serves "healthy snacks" as well as coffee and doughnuts. The entertainment comes from two television lounges, where the videotape of "Top Gun" in the most popular attraction.

The purpose of today's USO is "to serve the military and their dependents," Morrissey said.

"We nurture them and take care of them. This is a safe haven for them."

On a Tuesday afternoon, the St. Louis USO was full and hectic, with flights leaving that day for Germany, Okinawa and the Philippines. Most of the patrons were young servicemen, heading back to their bases after leaves. But there were also female soldiers, older officers, spouses and children.

While most stay less than a day, some military men and women and their families need the USO's hospitality for days or weeks.

Cpl. Norman Reed had been at the airport nine days, waiting for a "space available" flight to Germany with his German-born wife and their son. "The facilities are nice here," he said. "They have the baby beds. We had to buy some milk, but that's about it."

The USO was founded in 1941 when President Franklin Roosevelt encouraged six civilian organizations to unite and provide wartime support to the military.

The USO of the '80s is a multi-faceted service organization that operates airport centers, fleet centers and cultural programs for foreign spouses of U.S. military people. And, yes, it still sponsors touring entertainment shows abroad, with big names like Bob Hope, Loretta Lynn and Randy Travis.

The McDonnell USO is relatively young, opening at the airport in 1981 when the Military Airlift Command began using Lambert for military charter flights. It welcomes about 700 visitors a day, and last year served its 1 millionth military person.

Everyone is eager to note that the St. Louis facility is the world's largest airport USO, in terms of space (5,200 square feet) and number of volunteers (about 500).

"We're open around the clock and we've never closed since 1982," Morrissey said. "There's no limit on the goodwill of the USO."

The volunteers are the backbone of the USO and a source of pride for the professional staff. Jean-Marie Albert, director of volunteer services, keeps tabs on the men and women who staff the center day and night.

"Most of them are ex-servicemen, from the World War II era, or they have some family connection," Albert said.

Sophie Umbright, wearing a vest dotted with military pins, was holding down the fort at the always busy snack counter. She came with another volunteer four years ago and has been returning to help ever since.

"I have to do for others," she said. "I have five grandsons and three are in the service. Maybe this is my way to pay them back."

Those that she helps are always grateful, Umbright said. She proudly pointed to one of the pins on her vest, given to her by a colonel who appreciated her hospitality. "He said, 'You are far more deserving of this than I am,'" she recalled.

Another time, Umbright remembered, a young man had hurried home for the funeral of a family member. He needed some help getting ready. "We got him dressed," she said. "I hemmed his trousers. He wrote back several times after that." In addition to the time and energy of the volunteers, financial support from the community is essential to the USO, Morrissey said. The McDonnell USO is entirely funded by contributions and receives no money from the USO World Headquarters, the U.S. government or the United Way.

The staff also tries to solicit contributions of food, toiletries, baby supplies for the nursery, blankets and other items.

"Many people just don't know that we're here," Morrissey lamented. "The USO is just as important during peacetime as it was during the war."

As times have changed, so has the USO's role, from boosting morale to serving military families.

Morrissey recalled a day when a woman came into the USO and thanked her. "She explained that a year earlier her daughter was dying and her husband was stationed in Germany. He had 10 hours to make it back, and he didn't make it in time."

Someone called the USO and asked a volunteer to relay the news to the man when he arrived, Morrissey said. "The volunteer talked to him and was so understanding it was like his mother telling him, she said."

And the woman brought in her new baby for the staff to see. "That's what we're all about," Morrissey said. "Smoothing the way for the military."

Lenzi gets goal and assist to finish sweep of O'Fallon

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — Dave Ames has spent a lot of years sharing in victory with Gene Baker. Baker continues to win — and now some of that is coming at Ames' expense.

The Lady Warriors completed a two-game weekend sweep of Ames' O'Fallon team with a 3-0 victory in Granite City's home opener, Monday. Sophomore Addie Lenzi had a goal and an assist as the Lady Warriors raised their record to 4-1. Granite City had beaten the Panthers 4-0 on Saturday in O'Fallon.

"It could have been much more," Baker said. "We missed some chances, and I sure didn't want to run it up on Dave."

Ames, Baker's long-time assistant coach with the Warrior boys program, is still trying to get his team out of the starting blocks. The Panthers are 0-3.

"We are still not doing the things I want them to do," he said. "We're not running around and making the overlaps like we should. I hope they are learning things from these games. And we've had a pretty tough schedule to start with."

The Panthers have lost once to unbeaten Alton and twice to Granite City.

"Granite City was about like I expected," Ames said. "They have a lot of experience, which we don't have as much of, and they're just very tough."

After playing their first two games on successive days two weeks ago, the Lady Warriors had only played one game since and the rust showed at times. But junior Jennifer Moniz got things off to a quick start with her fifth goal of the young season after only six minutes of play. Sophomore Tia Rees started the play and Moniz banged the ball once off a defender before beating O'Fallon keeper Alyson Taylor with a nice shot from 20 yards out into the lower left corner.

It remained that way until a Panther mistake five minutes before halftime. An O'Fallon defender tried to clear the ball away from her goal area, but the ball went backward and Taylor had to make an alert save. But the carom went right to Lenzi for a point-blank shot and her second goal of the year. Lenzi then made a beautiful play and a perfect centering pass from the left wing to senior Jennifer Debeve for an easy shot at 57:00. It was Debeve's fourth goal of the year and her second in as many games against O'Fallon.

"Addie just played an outstanding game all over the field," Baker said. "We struggled to get things going at times, but the work rate was there."

Senior Chris Kasproch played the first three quarters in goal before freshman Leslie Stavelly finished up for the shut-out.

"She was very aggressive," Baker said of Stavelly. "She really comes out and gets the ball."

Debeve and Rees scored in Saturday's game at O'Fallon and Kasproch picked up the shut-out in wet, cold conditions. It wasn't wet Monday, but it was still cold.

DOC hunter safety course this week

Area residents will have an opportunity to learn basic principles of safe hunting at a Department of Conservation hunter safety course scheduled to run from 9 a.m. April 13 and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 15 at the VFW Hall, 21st and Washington, in Granite City.

A 1978 state law requires that all hunters under 16 successfully complete the hunter safety course before receiving their first hunting license. Participants completing the course receive a Hunter Safety Certification verifying they have passed the course.

"This will be an excellent opportunity for young hunters who need the course in order to qualify for their first hunting license," said Bill Sinkus, conservation education representative. "It also can be beneficial for beginning hunters older than 16, even though they do not require the course to be eligible for a license."

The 10-hour course includes instruction in wildlife management, firearms safety, hunter ethics, game identification, first aid, survival techniques and regulations.

For more information, contact the coordinating instructor at 876-7923.

WARRIORS WIN: Eric Mertz of Granite City won in No. 5 singles as the Warriors won the Civic Memorial Tournament on Saturday at SIUE with 38 points. O'Fallon was second with 35 points and Edwardsville was third with 35. Other singles winners from Granite City were Rich Harmon at No. 4 and Brian Jones at No. 6. Eric Patton and Chris Martinez won at No. 4 doubles. Raffi Karibian took third at No. 2 singles. Coach Al Lobdell attributed the win to the Warriors' depth, since there were six singles divisions. Granite City played at Edwardsville on Monday and hosts Roxana today at 4 p.m.

1st homestand vital to total attendance

Whether the Cardinals can draw close to 3 million fans this year might be determined during the team's first home stand of the season.

An entire season's attendance usually is not predicated by what happens during a few games in April, but this season's schedule is not a normal one for the Cardinals.

Because the team complained loudly enough when the initial 1989 schedule had the team making three trips to the West Coast instead of the usual two, the schedule was changed. The result: A 16-game home stand that begins Friday against the Mets.

"The first schedule had us making our second trip in July, then coming back home for one series and then flying back to San Diego," said Mike Bertani, the Cardinals' director of ticket and game operations. "We thought it was kind of silly."

When the Cardinals complained, the National League said the third trip was a result of the team's request to be out of town over the Fourth of July to avoid conflicting with the VFW Fair. The league said the extra trip was the only way to grant that request.

"We rescheduled that request, but then when the schedule came back they had dropped the third trip but we had a five-team home stand in April," Bertani said. "It was a catch 22 situation."

The Cardinals were one of three NL East clubs scheduled to make three trips to the West Coast this year. Pittsburgh and Chicago still will make that extra trip, with the Pirates going to Los Angeles after a series in Chicago, and then returning to the Cubs will play four games in San Francisco in between two home stands.

Bertani said the Cardinals objected to the extra trip more out of concern for the team than anything else.

"Basically, we look at the team, and we thought it would be tough on them," Bertani said. "Certainly economics plays a part, but we were mainly looking at it from the team aspect."

The home stand — against the Mets, Pirates, Expos, Giants and Dodgers, with one day off — equals the longest home stand in Busch Stadium history. The team had 16-game home stands in 1976 and 1979, but the home stand in 1978 was interrupted by the All-Star break and the 1979

Timely hitting, Pawlak's pitching help Lady Warriors even record

By Dan Schwandner
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — Timely hitting and outstanding pitching carried the Lady Warriors to a 5-3 victory over Edwardsville on a cold and blustery Monday afternoon at Wilson Park.

Coming off a 12-2 defeat at Wood River on Friday and having to play Belleville East and West later this week, Lady Warrior coach Jim Davis said the victory could not have come at a better time.

"It's a terrific victory for our kids considering our next two games are against the top two teams in the Southwestern Conference," he said. "It's a definite confidence builder."

Pawlak, coming off foot surgery, pitched her second complete game in helping the Lady Warriors even their season record at 2-2. Davis had nothing but praise for his No. 1 starter.

"We really didn't expect her to be successful," he said. "She's really matured and is a real competitor."

At the beginning of the season, Davis would have rather had someone else step into the pitching role and played Pawlak as a shortstop. However, the play of freshman Tiffany Winters may have convinced him otherwise.

"Tiffany is doing more than an adequate job at short," Davis said. "I don't feel a bit worried because she's doing an outstanding job."

After both teams scored first-inning runs, Granite City took the lead for good in the fourth. Junior Cheryl Holtkamp walked leading off the inning and scored on a double by junior catcher Michelle Bequette. Bequette advanced to third on the play when the Tigers tried to throw out Holtkamp at the plate. Bequette scored on a ground ball by junior Jennifer Cavness to give the Lady Warriors a 3-1 lead.

After the Tigers cut the lead to 3-2 in the fifth, Granite City came right back with two runs in the bottom of the inning. Winters drew a one-out walk from Edwardsville pitcher Tracey Onley. After Pawlak was retired, Cavness stole second and scored on a single to right by Bequette.

Bequette advanced to second on a passed ball and scored when Cavness rocketed a ball over Tiger center fielder Nikki Turner's head for a two-out triple to give Granite City a 5-2 lead.

Pawlak ran into trouble in the sixth. The first four Tiger hitters reached safely on hits. Edwardsville already had a run home and had the bases loaded with nobody out.

The Warrior lead was preserved, however, when Pawlak retired the next three batters. Melissa Dorsey flied to short center. Onley grounded to third and Warrior third baseman Mindy Hoth threw home for the force out. Michelle Hayes, pinch hitting for starting catcher Jamie Stack, grounded to short to end the threat.

"When you throw strikes you always have a chance," said Davis. "Walks are what kill you."

"I was pretty disappointed when we had the bases loaded and couldn't get anybody across," said Tiger assistant coach Irene Mezzano, filling in for head coach Kay Hyten, who is out with kidney problems. With the loss, Edwardsville dropped to 0-2 on the young season.

"Our varsity team has not played too much together," Mezzano said. "We're making a lot of mental errors and until we

Flyers win at West; Trojans, Warriors down in pack

BELEVILLE — Despite temperatures in the 40s and freezing rain at times, three metro east high school track powers dominated the prestigious and talent-laden field at Saturday's 27-team Belleville West Invitational track meet.

East St. Louis Senior High School ran away with first place in what used to be known as the Mineral Area meet, with 121 points by capturing five medals in the sprinting events. Another Southwestern Conference team, the Alton Redbirds, finished second with 103 while East St. Louis Lincoln came away third with 81 points.

The Madison Trojans finished in a tie for 21st with Freeburg with five points while the Granite City Warriors finished tied for 24th with Collinsville with two points. Jessie Leonard accounted for all the Trojans' points with a seventh (two points) in the 100 meters (11.8) and a sixth (three points) in the 400 meters (52.0). The Warriors got eighth (one point each) from Mike Fea in the long jump (20-1 1/2) and Dan Grayson in the discus (138-2 1/2).

Other area teams finishing in the top 15 included Edwardsville (7th), Belleville East (8th), Mascoutah (10th) and O'Fallon (14th). Weschm was 16th and Belleville West tied with Civic Memorial and Cahokia for 17th.

A good measure of the strength of the field shows Berkeley with five Missouri state track titles in this decade, with an 11th-place finish with 28 1/2 points.

"Considering the weather, things have gone fine," said Belleville West track coach and meet director Norm Armstrong. Armstrong, who will retire this year after 30 years at West, was pleased with the long jump of 22-3 1/2 by Maroon Mike Hall, good for second place and West's best performance. Alton's Myron Hickman won the event with a leap of 22-9.

"The competition is great," Armstrong said. "It makes the BILL WHITE as he appeared during the Cardinals' 1964 world championship season.

Rise to NL presidency a big surprise to White

By Rob Rains
Staff affiliate
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Bill White said he had never expected to find himself in a baseball management job when he was playing first base for the Cardinals.

Never has arrived.

White, after a 13-year playing career with the Cardinals (1959-66) and Phillies and 18 years as a broadcaster with the New York Yankees, has succeeded A. Bartlett Giamatti as the president of the National League.

"That's the last thing I would have thought," White said of taking a job just one step below that of commissioner. "I had no desire to be president."

But now that he has taken the assignment, White said his primary goals are to carry on with Giamatti's programs and to try to keep people from tinkering with the game.

"This is a great game," said White, 55. "The thing that gnaws at me is if people continue to try to tinker with it. I hope I can get people to realize we've got a ball of a game here, let's not hurt it. Let's leave something for the future."

White, who signed a four-year contract, characterized himself as a traditionalist in every sense of the word.

He likes outdoor stadiums, he likes grass, he doesn't like the designated hitter, he thinks both leagues should have the same number of teams and he intends to enforce the rules of the game and penalize those who break them.

"The rules are there, they are strict and they will be enforced," White said. "I'll reprimand players. I'll go by the rules."

White worked out of Giamatti's office starting in early February before officially taking office April 1, the same day Giamatti succeeded Peter Ueberroth as commissioner.

"If Bart's taken a step, I've taken a step," White said. "I've been with him. I just want to continue with the things Bart has started. We're worried about all of the social problems."

White also said he would work toward improving relations between owners and players.

"There's no reason players and owners can't have better relationships," he said. "I'd like to try to cut down on some of the negative publicity we're getting. I'd like to get a player who's making $2 million a year to stop complaining."

"I'd like to leave the game better than when I got it. I want to talk to the owners and general managers and find out what they think. I'd like to know what I can do to help baseball and help them. I have to find out what their problems are."

Considering White has been either a player or broadcaster for more than 30 years, there isn't a lot about the game that will surprise him in his new job.

What he doesn't know is how he will like being in a management position.

"If it isn't fun, I'll find something else to do," White said. "It depends on how I enjoy it, the cooperation I get and it depends on what type of job I do, I don't know where it will lead to."

White is definitely glad, however, to be back in the National League.

"I like the more aggressive style of play," White said. "I don't like the DH, because all a manager has to do is know how to spell nine names and then wait for the ninth inning and pinch-hit for somebody."

"I like rivalries, and I think there are more of them in the National League. When I played, we didn't really like anybody. It was a nice league to play in."

White knows the most controversial area likely to come up during his administration is expansion, and he said he really had no firm opinions on the subject — other than to realize that it is coming.

"I have no opinion as far as area," he said. "I do think there is an imbalance of teams (12 in the NL, 14 in the AL) and that there should be a balance. That's the first thing that has to be done, get parity and then go from there."

White, who toured all of the camps during spring training, said he had received a favorable reaction since his election was announced.

"I didn't get that type of ovations when I played," he said. "Everywhere I've been the people have been great."

home stand was the result of three rainouts, which were rescheduled as double-headers. The Cardinals already have sold more than 2.4 million tickets for this year, but no-shows are not counted when compiling a team's final attendance figure. Bertani is worried that there will be a lot of no-shows during the home stand.

"Last year we averaged 38,000 in April, but that was just for nine games," Bertani said. "We're hoping to average 32,000 to 34,000 (per game), and if the weather holds out we might be able to do that."

"There's really nothing else you can do. April always is the hardest month to draw."

The agent for Minnesota Twins pitcher Frank Viola is telling the team to trade Viola rather than risk losing him as a free agent after the season.

"The Twins should try to trade Viola, definitely," said the agent, Craig Fenech. Asked if that meant Viola would not re-sign with the Twins, Fenech said, "Absolutely, that's what I'm saying, it's over."

Viola has turned down a three-year, $7.9 million contract, which was identical to the pact signed by the Dodgers' Orel Hershiar in the off-season.

"We've gone as far as we're going to go," said Twins general manager Andy MacPhail. "This is the most we can possibly justify. All offers are off the table. If they can do better somewhere else, then they have that option."

Viola allowed eight hits and three runs in six innings in an opening-day loss to the New York Yankees in Minnesota and was booed as he left the field.

There is confusion in Seattle over pitcher Mark Langston's contract situation.

Langston, who also is eligible to be a free agent at the end of the year, said neither he nor his agent had talked with any Mariners official about his contract for more than a month. General manager Woody Woodward said he was not involved in any negotiations. Team president Chuck Armstrong, who has handled major contracts in the past, said team owner George Argyros had said he would personally be conducting the Langston negotiations.

Houston Astros pitcher Bob Knepper is another pitcher who apparently is trying to get himself traded. Knepper criticized the team's absentee ownership owner John McMillen lives in New Jersey — as the biggest reason for the team's lack of support. Knepper is making $1 million a year on a contract that runs through this year, with an option for next season.

Seattle is talking about trading shortstop Rey Quinones to the Yankees for lefthander Al Leiter. Every non-pitcher on the Oakland A's started either the first or second game of the season. Atlanta's Ron Gant led all second basemen with 26 errors last year and is taking aim on the title at a new position this season. Gant, switched to third base, made six errors in spring training and had two on opening day. The Cardinals ought to have the Cleveland Indians' schedule. The Indians are the swing team in the American League East this year, and will make four trips to the West Coast.

Ex-Cardinals of the Week: The Philadelphia Phillies. The team's award of the season annually goes to the team with the most former Cardinals on its opening-day roster. The Phillies win with four — pitcher Larry McWilliams, second baseman Tom Herr, catcher Steve Lake and outfielder Curt Ford. Catcher Tom Nieto, another former Cardinal, is on the Phillies' disabled list.

"We've been practicing indoors a lot (at Soccer For Fun)," Baker said. "But we've been able to get outside in the last week."

NOTES: The schedule gets tougher this week as the Lady Warriors start at home. They face Alton (7-4) on Thursday at 4:30, then tangle with Collinsville North comes to town for a 4 p.m. game Monday. The much-delayed final game of the R-9 Tournament against Mehlville will be played May 1 at 4 p.m. at Mehlville High School.

find the right combination of players, the first part of the season may be a little rocky. With the bad weather we've been having and the way we've had to practice, we're definitely not at our capabilities right now."

After hosting Belleville East on Tuesday, the Lady Warriors will travel to Belleville West for a 4:30 p.m. contest on Thursday. Pawlak is expected to pitch that game.

meet interesting, but it would have been a lot better if we would have had a nice day." Mascoutah senior Darren Plab had an off day in the high jump and still tied the meet record of 6'10 set by Edwardsville's Scott Ahardt in 1985. Plab tied with Mount Vernon's Jason James, but won on the basis of no misses. Plab then had the bar set at 7'4 — one inch lower than the Illinois prep record — but missed on three tries. In the 300-meter intermediate hurdles, Mascoutah's Terry Elmore had a time of 40.8, good for third place behind East Side's Vernon Powell in 39.2. Another Indian, Reggie Meyers, was third in the 200-meter run with a time of 23.5 and fourth in the 100-meter dash in 11.8, one of six runners to finish with that clocking. "He ran 10.9 in the semis," Mascoutah coach Pat Cook said of Meyers. "For some reason they ran the final into the wind. I'm not sure about that. That's about where we expected to be. We were a little disappointed that our 400-meter relay team dropped the baton. We were expected to score pretty high there."

Belleville East did well in the fresh-soph 1,600-meter relay with a second-place behind Hazelwood Central in 3:41.2. The Lancers tied for fourth with Berkeley in the 4x100 relay, a sixth in the 4x200 relay and got a tie for fifth in the pole vault.

Individually for the Lancers, Tyrone Perry was sixth in the 100-meter in 11.8 and sixth in the 200-meter run in 24.4. NOTES: In girls track, the Madison Trojannes took second at a quad meet in Collinsville on Friday with 76 points. Cahokia won the meet with 105 points. Madison got six firsts, including three out of four relays. Winning relay teams were Tramia Burt, Yuenna Sanders, Katrina Garrett and Melissa Davenport in the 800 medley (2:03.5); Sharon Browley, Garrett, LaGrana Marshall and Vivian Turner in the 400 relay (1:52.4); and Browley, Garrett, Marshall and Turner in the 400 relay (51.4). Individual winners were junior Shalonda Virginia in the 400-meter dash (65.5); Garrett in the 200 meters (27.3); and Burt in the high jump (4-9). The Trojannes got four seconds: Virginia, Marshall, Detra Blakely and Davenport in the 1600 relay (4:40.9); Deanna Brown in the 300 hurdles (58.5); Angelique Brown in the high jump (4-6); and Marvis Jones in the shot put (31-6). Third came from Deanna Brown in the 100 hurdles (18.6); Browley in the long jump (15-7); Nicole Walker in the 100 meters (14.2); and Jones in the discus (81-1). Madison hosted a meet Monday with Lebanon, East St. Louis Assumption and Belleville Althoff (boys and girls). Also on Monday, Granite City hosted Cahokia in boys and girls meets.
